VOL. XXII.

The Force Bill Now Regarded as Dead Be yond Recall-Senator Quay Against a Change of the Rules.

Washington, August 5 .- [Special.]-Reed and McKinley have come to the conclusion that opposition to Blaine's reciprocity scheme would be futile and they have unanimously decided to allow the Maine man to remain in

They have also decided not to make public the address they were to issue, attacking the Maine statesman and his reciprocity scheme.

Indeed they have come to the conclusion that the Blaine reciprocity stone wall is harder than their heads, and they have announced their willingness to compromise. Mr. Blaine's head is above the surface now and it looks like he is to be successful in the only two questions he seems to have considered-reciprocity with southern countries and opposition to the force bill. Blaine is, indeed, the great statesman of the republican party, and even Tom Reed, the tyrant, the braggart and the bully, goes down before him.

THE FORCE BILL DEAD, The decided opposition to the force bill which has manifested itself within the past day or two has brought Cabot Lodge and Grandma Hoar back to Washington in double They had gone off for a rest at the New England seaside resorts, but when they heard yesterday of the attacks upon their pet measure, both took the first train and hurried back. The came, however, only to find the bill dying, and they are consequently

Mr. Lodge, in a reply to a direct question this afternoon, said the bill would pass, but upon being asked when, repled ibetween now and the 4th of next March.

Hoar seems completely knocked out, so to speak, and refused to discuss the matter at all

"Boss" Quay has come to the support of Teller and Plumb and is now advising his colleagues not to attempt to pass the measure at this session. Wolcott, Paddock, Hale, Allison and Aldrich have also joined the Teller-Plumb wing of the party, and were today advocating the policy of announcing openly that the rules of the senate would not be changed for any measure, in order that the democrats might consent to the passage of the tariff bill without unnecessary delay. While they do not mention the force bill, as it is impossible for that measure to pass without changing the rules, their position is, of course, understood, to be in ensition to the iniquitous measure, and from the present indications the bill will soon be beneath the sod.

Tom Reed, of course, is very angry and has made use of some of his characteristic profane language in speaking of the honest senators who have withdrawn from his camp. He even went so far as to make use of the expression today that the house should t adjourn until the bill became a law, even if it took till the 4th of March. He further said that the house would not accept such a mild bill as some senators proposed. Until the house got the bill it wanted, it would not adjourn. Thus Reed is now trying to bulldoze the senate. Of course, the senate cannot adjourn without the consent of the house, and Reed expects to punish the senators by keeping them there until they succumb, and pass bis force bill. The chances, however, are that Reed can't work this game on the senate. In the first place the senators will not submit to Reed's dictation, and in the second place, he will not be able to hold all his men in the house in line on such a scheme as this. The fight between Reed and the senate will be an interesting one. The best opinion is, however, that Reed is butting against a stone wall when he attacks the senate in the manner he proposes.

Yes, the force bill is dving.

THE NEW APPORTIONMENT.

When Superintendent Porter took charge of the census bureau, he made the statement that the census report would show a large gain for the northwestern republican states, and that under the reapportionment the republicans would gain about twenty-five members of congress. He, however, now finds exactly the contrary. The west has not panned out, while the democratic cities of the north and some of the southern states show decided gains.

This means that under reapportionment, the democrats will gain and the republicans lose in congress. From the estimates being made up of the population of the various southern states, it is believed that both Georgia and Alabama will gain a con-gressman each. This will probably cause the election of a new member from Georgia next winter, from the state at large, as the legislature will have adjourned before the reapportionment bill passes congress. The question now of the delegated Georgia congressmen will get it. Mr. Clements has been suggested. For Alabama Mr. Kolb has been suggested.

COLUMBUS WANTS A RECOUNT. Mr. Grimes and Collector Walter Johnson called on Superintendent Porter today and requested that he have a recount of the population of Columbus. Mr. Porter promised to examine into the case and give them an answer within a few days. E. W. B.

STILL PATCHING THE TARIFF BILL. The Senate Gets Through with Several

Pages of the Bill. WASHINGTON, August 5 .- The senate met at 10 o'clock a. m. and immediately proceeded to the consideration of the tariff bill, the pending item being paragraph 107 on page 19:

"Cylinder and crown glass, polished."

Mr. Berry addressed the senate on the general subject of tariff legislation.

On paragraphs 113, 114, 115, referring to spectacles, the finance committee recommended an amendment to substitute for the mixed an amendment to substitute for the mixed rates fixed by the house (and increasing the rates very lergely) a uniform rate of 60 per cent ad valorem. Agreed to.

Mr. Wilson (Iowa) replied to some of Berry's statements, which were of a political character. Mr. Berry rejoined and the discussion was participated in by Messrs. Spooner, Paddock, Butler and Call, and lasted until 1:30 o'clock, when an amendment, offered by Mr. McPherson, to paragraph 106 as to the sizes of window glass, was accepted by Mr. Aldrich and was agreed to. No amendment was offered to paragraph 107. amendment was offered to paragraph 107, fixing the duties on cylinder and crown glass, Paragraph 108, referring to fluted, rolled or rough plate glass, was, on motion of Mr. Aldrich, agreed to as it came from the house, except that the description in the provision was modified so as to make it apply to all such glass when ground, smooth or otherwise obscured, and the committee amendment was disagreed to

Mr. McPherson made several efforts to have paragraph 109 amended, but failed. The paragraph relates to "cast polished plate glass, unsilvered."

On motion of Mr. Aldrich the words "finished or unfinished" were added to this classifica-tion. Incidental to this paragraph arose an-other political debate between Messrs. Vance and Aldrich.

No amendment of any kind except those recommended by the finance committee was permitted to pass until the section of the bill relating to the different kinds of stone, mar-ble, etc., was reached. Then Mr. Vest moved to strike out the word "slate pencils" and Mr. Aldrich consenting, the motion was agreed to. Then come schedule C—"metals, and manu-facturers of."

facturers of."

Mr. Morgan moved to insert after the words "fron ore" the words "containing more than one-tenth of one per cent of phosphorous and phosphoric seld," his purpose being to have steel ores admitted free of duty. He argued that there was no reason why iron and steel works should be confined to the mountain regions of the country, and that it would be very advantageous to have Bessemer ore from Cuba or from the Mediterranean landed on the Guif coast or Atlantic coast and there converted coast or Atlantic coast and there converted into all sorts of structural steel, and he recalled the statement of John Roach that, if he could have free iron and steel cres, he could build steel ships as cheaply as they could be built on the Clyde.

Mr. Gorman argued upon the same lines as Mr. Morgan, and had not concluded his argument when the senate adjourned, having reached page 24 of the bill.

A REPUBLICAN SCHEME. Increasing the Force at a Navy Yard to Aid the Party at an Election. WASHINGTON, August 5.—After the reading of the journal Mr. Bingham, of Pennsylvania, moved to lay on the table the motion (which has been pending for some time) to reconsider the vote by which the house passed a bill to grant leaves of absence to clerks in first and grant leaves of absence to cierks in first and second class postofices.

This was advocated by Mr. Flower, of New York, who held that the government should act towards its employes just as a wise merchant or banker would act towards his. No business man, who was not mean, would decline to give his government to the property of the proof of the property of the proof o cline to give his employes two weeks' leave of absence with pay, knowing full well that he would benefit in increased efficiency by the rest and recreation accorded them.

The motion to reconsider was tabled-yeas 138; nays 60.
Mr. McKinley, from the committee on rules, exported (as a substitute for Mr. Cummings' resolution asking the secretary of the navy for reasons for an increase of force a

TO AID THE REPUBLICANS. In speaking to the resolution, Mr. Cum-mings said that he rose in defense of public morality and public law, which had been menaced by a public official. The orders increasing the force of Kittery navy yard looked as though the design was to use the executive as though the design was to use the executive power for partisan purposes. He charged that Kittery yard was used for political purposes, and quoted figures to show that previous to elections the list of employes was much larger than it was a month or two afterwards. larger than it was a month or two afterwards. A majority of the men employed came from Maine, the state of Thomas a Becket Reed. He quoted at length from testimony taken by the Whitthorn committee in 1876, to show that the policy of the republican party had been to use the navy yards to expedite political ends. This policy was worse than the shotgun policy. Fifteen years ago a republican secretary of the navy had stated that the Lancaster was not worthy of repair and that the Monongahela was in tolerable condition with a speed of ten and a half knots. [Laughter.]

These were vessels the present secretary of These were vessels the present secretary of the navy certified that the needs of the public service required to be repaired. [Laughter]-It was the republican and not the public service that demanded an increase of the force at Kittery yard. The reelection to congress of the speaker of this house and the re-election of a republican from the first district of New Hampshire were desired. Thus the public would read it aright. But for the necessities of the republican party these wretched hulks would be left behind the dead line where they belonged. The committee on line, where they belonged. The committee on rules had reported, as a substitute for his resolution, a resolution which referred the whole offense to the offender himself.

BOUTELLE REPLIES TO CUMMINGS. Mr. Boutelle said he felt like making an gy for answering the remarkable demon stration that had been made by the gentleman from New York. The gentleman, in his search for sensations, had worked himself up to a high state of excitement over the fact that the secretary of the navy had really possessed the hardihood to obey the mandatory instructions of congress. Mr. Boutelle explained that Secretary Tracy had simply discharged a duty devolved upon him under the provisions of the mayal appropriation bill. All the work he had undertaken was required by that bill. He read (amid the applause and laughter of his party colleagues) similar orders issued under the Cleveland administration. He also attacked that administration for its action in discharging union soldiers from the Norfolk navy yard, and filling their places with exconfederates, instancing the case of one man who took the oath of allegiance on the 15th of the month, and received an appointment on the 16th. of congress. Mr. Boutelle explained that Sec-

The resolution was then adopted. Yeas, Mr. Lacey, of Iowa, submitted the majority report on the Clayton-Breckinridge election case. The report, which declares the seat vacant, was ordered printed and laid over. Vacant, was ordered printed and laid over.

The house then went into committee of the whole on the general deficiency bill.

Without disposing of the bill, the committee rose and the house adjourned.

The Committee Reports a Substitute for the Two House Bills.

the Two House Bills.

WASHINGTON, August 5.—Representative Morrow, of California, from the committee on foreign affairs, today reported to the house a substitute for the two bills upon the subject of Chinese immigration, which had been referred to that committee. The bill reported today contains substantially the provisions of both the Morrow and Clunie bills, for which it is substituted. The bill proposes to exclude all Chinese, even those who may hereafter leave the United States and attempt to return, excepting Jdiplomatic and consular officers and commercial agents, and the coming of Chinese to the United States for transit is expressly prohibited. A fine of $500 for each Chinese brought into the United States is provided for the punishment of vessel masters bringing them, and the vessels are to be subject to forfaiture.

Provision is also made for the punishment of persons aiding Chinese to enter the United States by land or otherwise, and for the removal of Chinese found unlawfully in the country. It is further provided that Chinese shall not be admitted to citizenship, and that conflicting treaty provisions shall be abrogated.

No rental will be charged for the land, and the firm will furnish all the means of support for the negroes till they can get their grounds under cultivation and become self-sustaining. CHARLESTON, S. C., August 5 .- [Special.]-

The most intensely bitter political-campaign ever held in this state petered out at Walter-boro today in the midst of a drenching shower of rain, a complete collapse of the platform and lot of promiscuous knock-down-and-dragout fights. The lie, which has been a commo occurrence at the meetings of late, was not exchanged from the stand-at least, not the lie direct-but the crowd, which numbered 1,000, indulged in it quite frequently. In one of the scrimmages an enthusiastic straight-out had his head broken by a Tillman town marshal, and several Tillman enthusi-asts were badly handled. The whole state is glad that the campaign is over. The result is that Tillman has 187 of the 320 votes elected to the convention. But the fight is not yet over, and the straight-out democrats do not give up. They will fight Tillman to the bitter end. Another alliance candidate has appeared in Another alimance candidate has appeared in the field in the first Charleston district in the person of H. A. Metz, of Lexington, who has been endorsed for congress against W. H. Brawley, of Charleston. Metz is a lawyer, but is understood to have taken the subtreasury topic. It is also believed that W. J. Tolbert, the alliance state lecturer, will be run in George D. Tillman's district, unless Tillman will swallow the subtreasury tonic. This makes five alliance candidates already in the field, with two districts to hear from.

NASHYILLE, Tenn., August 5.—[Special.]—Will Jones, a negro convict from Shelby county, who has served about one-half of a ten-year term for rape, is at-the point of death in the hospital at the penitentiary. His condition is the result of a wound inflicted by Will Allen, a white man from Haywood county, who is in for passing counterfeit money. Jones had reported some misconduct of Allen's to the foreman, and hearing of it Allen approached him, and after a few words stabled him in the left side, near the heart, with a long keen ch'sel, which entered Jones's left lung.

A Little Humor

London, August 5.—Mr. P. O'Brien asked in the house of commons, this evening, whether the government would prosecute the poet Swinburne for his poem in the Fortnightly Review, which, he said, was grossly calculated to incite to the murder of the czar. Mr. O'Brien was proceeding to read the poem when the speaker called him to order, saying that parliament could not control the poems of Swinburne. This remark was received with laughter.

Republican Fraud Frustrated.

The democrats have caught on to a modification of the blocks-of-five plan, which, it is

THE MYSTERIES OF ELECTRICITY. Peculiar Case of Lightning Stroke at Co-

The heat during the morning had been very great, and she sat in the rear yard writing a letter on a hor writing a letter on a box.

At about 11:30 o'clock the sky suddenly became cloudy; there was a lightning flash, followed instantly by a loud thunder clap. Mrs. Breisford was knocked clear into the house, a distance of ten feet, and the box at which she was writing had been knocked fifteen feet in an opposite direction. Mr. Brelsford found his wife unconscious and carried her to her bed. She remained unconscious for over an hour, when she partly rallied. At 5 o'clock in the evening she had a relapse, and has een growing worse ever since. Dr. Deery, the attending physician, is much puzzled over the case. THE CONSTITUTION'S WORK

In Stirring Up the People to a Sense of Their Danger.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., August 5.-[Special.]-The Buckeye Club, composed of natives of Ohio, held a business meeting tonight. The by-laws of the club prohibit political action or discussion, but, after the regular meeting, the members assembled in mass meeting to protest against the passage of the Lodge bill. Most of the members are republicans, and several of them made speeches expressing their belief that the measure was dangerous to the business interests of the country, and would accomplish no good. Major W. H. Hunter, a federal office holder, and commander of the Alabama department of the Grand Army of the Republic, said the proposed remedy was worse than the disease, and he was opposed to any such laws. It was unanimously resolved to send a petition to the senate asking for the defeat of the bill.

The police discovered the oxen, and, suspecting that they were stolen property, kept a watch over them until yesterday morning, when Walker appeared upon the scene.

He was arrested, as stated. He claimed that the animals were the property of a Will Montgomery or Will Monroe, of Athens, who had gone north, leaving them with him for sale, his commission being all over fifteen dollars a head he would get for them. Walker said he was living on a farm near Athens,

Or is it all of them, and if so, how and why? These are the perplexing questions that are agitating the minds of the people of Dallas.

Georgia's judicial history.

The state opened with one of the prime witnesses in the case.

Mr. George P. Horton, whose sister Nutall Bo craelly and wantonly deserted, leaving her with five children to support with no means to go upon, was first put upon the stand.

Mr. Horton is from Wadesboro, N. C., the scene of some of Nutall's escapades. He will be remembered very pleasantly by all who met him during his stay in Atlanta last winter, when Dale was first arrested. He swore most emphatically to the identity of W. R. Dale with J. O. H. Nutall, who married witnesses' sister in 1876 or '77, and that he deserted her with J. O. H. Nutall, who married witnesses; sister in 1876 or '77, and that he deserted her and disappeared from that section in September, 1880. and asked if it resembled Nutail.

Mr. Horton very promptly stated that it did. Another photograph was handed him, and he was asked the same question, and replied in the negative.

The upshot was that the first proved to be a photograph of Dale, or Nutall, taken while he was lying down as if he were dead, and the last one was a picture of the man killed in Atlanta some years ago, about whose death there was such a mystery, which has never been

John A. George, formerly of North Carolina now of Atlanta, a printer employed at The CONSTITUTION office, testified to having met Dale on Broad street bridge in Atlanta, and recognized and addressed him as Nutall. The latter denied that he was Nutall, insisting that George was mistaken, but the latter stuck to his point, and Dale passed on. Mr. George swore emphatically to Nutall's identity. Dr. E. H. Dr. Green testified to having recognized him as Nutall, on the streets of Atlanta, and afterwards on a train going to Jonesboro, without Nutall having been pointed out to him by any one. His identification was positive.

B. M. Barrett, of Atlanta, testified to having been with Mr. George when the latter identified him on Broad street bridge. After the matter became stirred up he went to Dale, the latter being his pastor, and offered to bear his expenses and go with him to North Carolina and confront Mrs. Nutall so as to vindicate himself before the people. Dale replied that he was informed that Mrs. Nutall had some desperate brothers, and that he was afraid they would kill him. For that reason he refused to go. J. R. Moon, sheriff-of Paulding county, was called, and testified to hearing the conversa-tions between Mr. Horton and Dale, last fall, when Dale was first arrested, and Mr. Horton offered Dale that if he would leave the when Dale was first arrested, and Mr. Horton offered Dale that if he would leave the country he would not appear against him. Mr. Horton explained that he did not want to prosecute Dale on account of his sister's children, and that was why he made the proposition to him.

After this, the state rested, relying on the burden of evidence produced, for the conviction of the case, and court took a recess till this morning.

J. M. Hill, of Atlanta, a printer, swore that he knew Nutall in Atlanta about '69 to'71 as a gambler. He went under the name of "Sweeney's Kid" in those days. Mrs. M. T. Walton, of Atlanta, swore that she knew a man in Columbas, Ga., whose name was Dale, a sewing machine agent. She thought, but was not positive, that he was the same man. She met him after he came to Atlanta, as pastor of the church. She asked him if he did not remember her family, and he laughed the matter off, carelessly stating that he didn't remember. After he got into the trouble last fall he came to her and told her that he did remember them, and that he was the same man she knew in Columbus.

Mrs. Annie Penley, of Atlanta, the mother of Mrs. Walton, testified to about the same facts. She lived in Macon, but she had seen Dale, and after he came to Atlanta she thought had knew him, but was not positive. She was Isaac S. Boyd, of Atlanta, testified to having known a man in Columbus, in 1871, who was in some sort of machine busness. cember, 1884. His testimony was drawn out for this purpose. He said he had never heard of Dale's having a wife in North Carolina until Jay D. Edwards, of Atlanta, testified to a man's having been murdered some years ago in Atlanta. He saw the body of the dead man, and after looking at Nutall's photograph, he thought that it resembled the man who was murdered out on the Marietta road, about whose mysterions, death such a sensation was beyond controversy.

Sheriff Moon was recalled for the state and

Richard T. Kelly, of Atlanta, was a street car driver. He recalled the murder of the stranger and swore that he saw the murdered man and another, a larger man, get off the cars together out on Marietta street. He was asked by the court to describe the larger man, and he gave a pretty fair description of Mr. George Horton, Nutall's injured brother-inlaw. Then, when he was asked to look around and see if he could recognize the man, he pointed out Mr. Horton as being very much like him. This caused a little ripple in the monotonous proceedings of the court, but of course everybody believed the witness to be attalk and cartistar mistaken in his utterly and entirely mistaken in his con-

A few days age he was in the city of Atlanta and saw Nutal he was in the city of Atlanta and saw Nutall standing on the street talking to an old darkey and he exclaimed, "Why, here's Nutall." He said he did not know whether or not Dale heard him, but that he was close enough to have caught the remark and that he turned. B. M. Barrett, a butcher of Atlanta, was recalled for the state, and testified that he and

George R. Rawlings was recalled and an attempt to introduce the letters written by

Nutall to Miss Kate Rawlings as evidence, was everruled.
Earlier in the trial Judge Maddox had overruled a motion to introduce books kept here by Dale to prove his handwriting.

It was a shrewd piece of work on the part of the defense to try to claim that the alleged crime of bigamy having been committed in 1884, it was barred by the statute of four years' limitation, but the court decided that because limitation, but the court decided that because the offender was not found out, nor the offense discovered in the five years that intervened between his marriage and the developing of the case it was not good ground for dismissing it, and proceeded with the trial.

Dale Tells a Startling Story. After the evidence was all in, Dale took the stand and began his statement. He said his first recollection was that he was a street arab in New York city. He was under a mar named McSwain, who treated him cruelly, and often beat him. One day, when he had been beaten worse than usual, he ran away. Just as he stepped off the ferry boat on the Jersey City side, he was met by a man named Sweeney, known afterwards as Big Nad Sweeney, who said that Dale's father had befriended him at one time, and he would now repay the kindness. Sweeney told him that his mother was living, and told him that he was born in Wake county, North Carolinathe first he ever knew of his birth and parentage. He set out to find his mother, and located her in New Orleans, where she was in ill health. She told him the story of their separation. She said that his father's health failed him, and with his wife and little boy, himself took ship for their old home, in England. On the way a storm struck the vessel, and she knew nothing more for a long time. When she became conscious she found herself in New Orleans, in charge of an old friend, Dr. Lemerine, and there she remained

THE CASE CLOSED. In conclusion he put his case in the hands of the jury for them to decide. The case was closed at this point, with the exception of a few items of rebuttal testimony of minor importance. Mr. Charles D. Mc-Gregor opened for the state and spoke for about an hour. His speech was a masterly effort, and he arrayed a great volume of facts against the prisoner at the bar.

Colonel Ivy Thompson followed in a very strong speech for the defense, endeavoring to convince the jury that the prisoner was guilty of no crime, but the victim of mistaker identity.
Colonel Speairs, of Atlanta, followed on the same line, and delivered a lengthy address in behalf of the client. Judge James A. Anderson then began to address the jury, but when he had spoken a few minutes the court took a recess until tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock.

The sentiment of the public here is solidly against Dale, and nobody who has heard the trial and is familiar with the circumstances doubts for a moment that he is Nutall, and is guilty of bigamy and various other offenses against the law.

The letters that were ruled out of court were written in cipher for the most part, and were addressed to Miss Rawlings by Nutall. In one of the letters he wrote to her after her mothe had gone to Convers and carried her back to North Carolina, and among other things he wrote to her to address her letters to Captain W. R. Dale, Rockmart, and that gave the whole thing away. These letters contain very interesting reading, and fully illustrate the perfidy of Nutall, who wrote the letters ddressed to himself while playing with the affections of the Rawlings girl, while he was living with his wife at her father's house, and planning the elopement which brought him to Conyers, where his strange career began. The case will go to the jury tomorrow morn-

Judge Anderson will finish his speech and Solicitor Janes will have the concluding argument. It is probable that a verdict will b reached early in the afternoon. It is a strange affair all around. PERFECTLY AT EASE.

Nutall seems perfectly composed and takes the matter just as easy and nonchalantly as if he never had a charge of any kind made against him. His devoted wife appears to have unwavering confidence in his innocence.

The Noonday Association.

Acworth, Ga., August 5.—[Special.]—The Noonday Association finished the work of the meeting at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon and adjourned to meet at Smyrna on Friday before the first Sunday in August, 1891. The meeting was composed of intelligent representative men. The business was disposed of with dispatch and harmony prevailed throughout. The divisions, confusion and ill feeling that hung over the association a year ago, and hung over the association a year ago, and which threatened to disrupt and divide the church in this section of the state, passed away without a breach in the great brotherhood. Now union and harmony prevail. ciation raised during the past year about $1,100 for mission work. Judge James R. Brown paid $600 of that amount.

THE "CORPSE TRUST" GANG. One of Its Number Pardoned by Governor.

Governor.

Governor.

Columbia, S. C., August 5.—[Special.]—
The governor today granted a free pardon to Thomas Bond, the youngest and least guilty of the notorious "corpse trust" gang convicted in Charleston in June, 1888, of conspiracy and fraud. This gang were implicated in a conspiracy to swindle insurance companies, for which the father of the young man just pardoned, was the agent. They insured imaginary persons, reported their deaths and collected the insurance money. By such means, they made a very large sum before the frauds were discovered. Thomas Bond was a very young man who had been married to a charming woman only three months before his conviction. It was evident that his father persuaded him to commit the crimes. The petition for his pardon was most powerful, and in addition to this, his young wife was dying. These several reasons induced the governor to exercise his perogative in an important case.

THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION AT LITHIA SPRINGS.

His Lectures on Education and Crime Antic ipated With Great Interest-The Programme for Today.

Dr. William T. Harris, United States com-LITHIA SPRINGS, Ga., August 5 .- [Special.] missioner of education, is in Georgia. comes to deliver two lectures at the Piedm Chautauqua. He arrived in Atlanta yester-day at 11 a. m. on the Air-Line train. Judge Hook, state school commissioner, was una noidably absent on account of having to make an address at Forsyth, and could not receive Dr. Harris, but in his stead, Assistant state school commissioner, Professor Fermor Barrett, met Dr. Harris and took him in

Dr. Harris visited the capitol, met General Gordon and other statehouse officers, and was charmed with Georgia. He says Atlanta has learned the great secret-the three keys of success—railroads, morning newspapers and good schools. He said Atlanta ought to be the greatest city in the south. Atlanta is alive to her interest.

Dr. Harris left for Lithia Springs at 1:13 o'clock, accompanied by Rev. Dr. Lee and Prof. Fermor Barrett. Dr. Harris is said to be the finest thinker and profoundest philosopher now in America, and those who heard his lecture last night at 8 o'clock are certainly of the same opinion.

A deeper, more profound, logical and learned lecture has never been delivered at the Chautauqua. The largest audience that has yet assembled greeted this grand man. Georgia is to be congratulated that Dr. Harris has paid this visit.

THE CONSTITUTION regrets that space will not permit the whole address to be published. Hon. John Temple Graves introduced Dr. Harris in his usual eloquent manner. His address was such as to elicit constant applause from the audience.

After some preliminary remarks, Dr.

Harris said:

Harris said:

There are two phases of education in school.

One is addressed to the intellect, and the other to the will. The former we call intellectual training, and the latter we call moral training. The one gives the child insight into the world of nature and the world of man. The other teaches him four to behave

gives the child insight into the world of nature and the world of man. The other teaches him how to behave.

I propose to discuss this evening the question of school discipline, or what the school does to make the child moral. Tomorrow morning my theme will be the other side of education—the course of study.

The relation of education to crime has been often canvassed. Sometime it has been asserted that as education increases, crime increases in equal, or grater ratio. The inference left for us to draw from this is, that education in the school produces more intellect, and not a sufficiency of moral restraining force to prevent crime. A writer in the Popular Science Monthly, for last February, lays great stress on this view. It looks plausible when presented as he presents it. An examination of the eriminals in one of the states shows sevently per cent who can read and write, and only thirty per cent who can read and write, and only thirty per cent who can read and write, and only thirty per cent who can read and write, and only thirty per cent who can feet the feets on the other hand that the reads from the feets on the other hand that the reads are illiterate. It seems that our schools furnis the great majority of our criminals. It is certai from the facts on the other hand that the mer possession of a knowledge of reading does not ut terly prevent crime. But the exact influence of education on crime is not shown by the figure presented for the reason that nothing is said of the ratio of illiterates to those who can read and write in the state whose criminals have been investigated. We cannot tell the value of a fraction b an inspection of its numerator alone, we must se in the state whose criminals have been investigated. We cannot tell the value of a fraction by an inspection of its numerator alone; we must see also its denominator. Six is larger than three, but six-tenths is not so much as three-fourths. To determine whether the statistics of illiteracy of criminals tells for or against education we must compare them with the statistics of illiteracy of the whole population. In other words, we must add the denominators to the numerators given by the alarmist writer quoted. The state was found to have, in 1880, an illiterate population of less than five per cent. The question of education and crime now stated in view of the statistics reads differently. Seventy per cent of the population in the jaffs have been furnished by the 95 per cent who can write, while 30 per cent have been furnished by the 5 per cent who are illiterate. This would give us eight times as many criminals from each thousand of illiterates as from a thousand not illiterate. Certainly, the statistics thus examined are not unfavorable to the schools. And this is the actual showing of the house of correction in Detroit, Mich., for the first twenty-five years of its existence—forty thousand committed, and 70 per cent able to write out of an entire population of 95 per cent; but there were 30 per cent of illiterates seat thither from a population of which less than 5 per cent were illiterate.

In 1870, an investigation of the returns of seven teen states that kept a record of the educational status of their criminals, showed nearly the same results as these from one jail in Michigan, namely, eight times as many criminals from an influence of the content of the content of the returns of seven teen states that kept a record of the school and the same results as these from one jail in Michigan, namely, eight times as many criminals from an interest per cent and the population as from an interest per cent and the population as from an interest per cent and the population as from an interest per cent and the populat results as these from one juil in Michigan, namely, eight times as many criminals from the illiterate stratum of the population as from an equal number of the population who could read and write. In that investigation there were 110,000 prisoners in the aggregate, investigated. The statistics of penitentiaries, that is to say the state prisons, show an average of better educated criminals than the jails or houses of correction. We found recently in an investigation undertaken by the Bureau of Education that there were three and the Bureau of Education that there were three and the Bureau of Education that there were three and one-fourth times as many criminals in the prisons from the illiterates as their quota required.

Another interesting question is that concerning the kinds of crimes which are now punished in those states which our alarmist cites as having so greatly increased in criminals while the schools have been growing in efficiency. Take the state of Massachusetts. Its criminals in prisons and july have increased out of all proportion to the greatly increased in criminals while the schools have been growing in efficiency. Take the state of Massachusetts. Its criminals in prisons and jails have increased out of all proportion to the increase in population. But it is important to inquire what is the nature of the crime punished are they crimes against person and property, or only crimes against person and property, or only crimes against public decency which were not formerly punished at all, or less frequently than now? In reply to this pertinent question we learned that it is the zeal of the prohibitionists that has made this bad showing. Once it was thought to be a vice that leaned to virtue's side to get under the influence of liquor. Only cases of gross intoxication publicly exhibited would be thought important enough to warrant an arrest. Now an enlightened public sentiment discovers so much evil emanating from drunkenness that it deals sternly with the vice of intemperance, and in 1885 Massachusetts had over 18,000 arrests for intemperance, while in 1880 there were less than 4,000. On the other hand, in 1860 the cases of arrest for crimes against person and property were more numerous proportionately than in 1885. In twenty-five years the crimes against person and property had decreased 44 per cent, allowing for increase in the population.

It seems, therefore, that this alarm about the increase of crime with the increase of education means this: Person and property are much safer than they were twenty-five years ago, but temperance is not nearly so safe.

Next let us inquire into the nature of the school instruction in good behavoir and see what's done by the good school to promote public mbrals.

The lecturer devoted the rest of the lecture to a discussion of the habits that the school large school in promote public mbrals.

in changing the appearance of the tabernacle platform. Large flags and quantities of bunting were tastefully draped about the platform end of the great building, and the bareness and bigness somewhat relieved.

The assembly Bible study continues to interest the more thoughtful people present, while those who do not care to study find amusement and recreation in the physical culture or art rooms, in the music of the orchestra, band or chorus, or in boating riding, etc. A large proportion of the people here are interested in the real work of the assembly. At 2:30 o'clock p. m. the Weber reed band gave a concert, each number of which was warmly applauded, and at 3 o'clock p. m. Dr. E. S. Lewis, of Chattanooga, Tenn., lectured, taking for his subject "John Smith and His Chances." The lecture was a history of the struggle for the recognition of the individual as the unit of civilization. It was thoughtful and scholarly, the audience larger than usual and containing more persons of liberal education than usual, owing to the fact that a number of teachers and ministers were present to hear Dr. Harris, who listened with evident interest and approval.

At the close of Dr. Lewis's lecture, Dr. Harris was introduced and made a brief address. The ministers' institute lecture was delivered by Dean Wright at the usual time and place, and to a larger number of people than usual.

One of the interesting features was the introduction of Mr. Maurice Thompson at the

C. L. S. Round Table. After the singing of some Chautauqua songs, and a brief address on C. L. S. C. work by Dr. Gillett, Mr. Thompson was introduced. After a brief address, in which he referred to the defeat of the bill authorizing the president of the United States to conclude treaties with foreign powers which would protect the author against the foreign piratical publisher, and securing a unanimous support to a resolution Sapproving the action of congress, he read three beautiful poems of his own writing, one on "The South," which is here given in full:

TO THE SOUTH.

O swart, hot land of pine and palm,
Of peach, fig, guava, orange, lime,
And terebinth and tropic balm.

Land where our Washington was born
When truth in hearts of gold were worn!

Mother of Marion, Moultrie, Lee,
Widow of fallen chivalry!

No longer sadly look behind,
But turn and face the morning wind.
And feel sweet comfort in the thought!

"With each fierce battle's sacrifice
I sold the wrong at awful price,

I sold the wrong at awful price, And bought the good; but knew it not." Cheer up! reach out! Breathe in new life!
Brood not on unsuccessful strife
Against the current of the age;
The Highest is thy heritage!
Leave off this death's-head scowl of fate,
Throttle this hate insatiate,
And into thy heart sink this:
"God loves to walk where freedom is!"

There is no sweet in dregs and lees; There is no fruit on girdled trees. Plant new vineyards, sow new fields, For bread and wine the future yields; Out of free soil freels spathes shall start; Now is the budding time of art!

But hark! Oh, hear! My senses reel; Some grand presentiment I feel! ome grand presentiment I feel! voice of love, bouquet of truth, ne quick sound of the feet of youth!

Lo! from the war-cloud, dull and dense,
Loyal and chaste, and brave and strong,
Comes forth the south with frankincense
And vital freshness in her song.
The weight is fallen from her wings;
To find a purer air she springs
Out of the Night into the Morn,
Fair as cotton, sound as corn.

Hold! Shall a Northman, fierce and grim, With hoary beard and boreal vim, This fling, from some bleak waste of ice, Frost crystals of unsought advice.

To those who dwell by Coosa's stream, Or on dark hummocks plant the cane Beside the lovely Pontchartrain. Or in gay sail boats drift and dream Where Carribean breezes stray On Pensacola's drowsy bay?

Not so! I am a Southerner;
I love the South; I dared for her
To fight from Lookout to the sea,
With her proud banner over me;
But from my lips thanksgivings broke,
As God in battle-thunder spoke,
And that Black Idol, breeding drought
And dearth of human sympathy
Throughout the sweet and sensuous South,
Was, with its chains and human yoke,
Blown hellward from the cannon's mouth,
While Freedom cheered behind the smo DR. HARRIS' LECTURE.

Following was an informal reception to Dr. Harris and Mr. Thompson in the hotel parlors. Mr. and Mrs. Hemphill, Messrs. Tynes and Gray and Misses Turner and Powell acted as committee of introduction. Music was furnished by [Weber's orchestra. The hour passed pleasantly and the guests who througed the halls and parlors of the hotel pronounced our distinguished guests very pleasant people.

The days to come are full of interest. Today Dr. Harris lectures at 11 o'clock a. m. on "The Windows of the Soul," and at 3 o'clock p. m. Hon. Edwin Willetts lectures on a sub-ject of interest to the farmers, and tonight at 8 o'clock p. m. Maurice Thompson lectures on "Religion and Romance." THE PROGRAMME.

T. D. JONES COMES CLEAR. The Story of the Assassination of W. H. Ahrens.

The jury of inquest on the body of W. H. Ahrens, who was shot by T. D. Jones at Ten-Mile Hill on Sunday last, rendered a verdict today of justifiable homicide. In the hearing some sensational evidence was brought out, which had not yet appeared in print. Mrs. Green, in her testimony on Sunday, swere that Green, in her testimony on Sunday, swore that she was not in the room in which Ahrens was shot. J. C. Dawdray, the pump tender at the Hill, testified at the inquest that after the shooting he went with Green and Mrs. Green to the house, where the dead man lay. Both requested him to go in the room. Mrs. Green requested him to go in the room. Mrs. Green told witness that she had been nervous about burglars, and had not gone to her bed at all that night, hut had sat in a rocking chair beside the double couch on which Ahrens was lying, when Green shot him. It was also proved that there were two pillows on the proved that there were two pillows on the couch, and that Akrens was in his night clothes when shot. SUCH IS FATE. He Killed Himself Because He Thought He Made a Bad Trade.

Macon, Ga., August 5.—[Special.]—Ten years ago, Mr. M. Eisner, of Macon, killed himself because he thought he had made a bad trade in buying the Beasley place, in Macon, containing a house and four acres of land, for which he paid $1,300. His estate consisted of this property and $1,300 in bonds, which were inherited by a brother living in Europe and one who resided in New York. The brother in Europe preferred the bonds to Macon dirt, and the New York brother accepted the Beasley place as his share, and came to Macon, and has since resided on it, its benefit as a home offsetting any interest the brother in Europe may have received from the bonds.

Mr. Francis Eisner, the owner of the Beas-Mr. Francis Elsner, the owner of the Beas-lev place, has now been offered $10,000 for the property, so great has been the increase in real estate values. And yet ten years ago his brother killed himself because he thought he and made a bad bargain in originally buying the property at $1.300. How strange is fate.

MISSISSIPPI AND GEORGIA. One Represents the Cotton Patch and the Other the Cotton Mill.

L. Warfield in Yazoo City Herald.

We all recognize that the Georgia Pacific railroad is the great bond between Georgia and our immediate section of Mississippi—the great Delta country—with its inexhaustible fertility and productions. And if that road with its customary enterprise and sagacity discerns the situation, and will reach out for the rich prize, the harvest is in its grasp. That great road has pierced a magnificent territory in Mississippi from Alabama to the Mississippi river. But this is not enough. It must now feed itself and ramify that whole fertile valley of the Yazoo and Mississippi, with its iron arteries extended in every direction. It will then reap the full reward and measure of its mission. Thus will our section of the state be truly brought into intimate convertient with Central read to the properties and the section of the state be truly brought into intimate convention. L. Warfield in Yazoo City Herald. measure of its mission. Thus will our section of the state be truly brought into intimate connection with Georgia and her business men.

Mississippi represents the cotton patch and Georgia the cotton mill. And when they do come to see us, although we are no slouch ourselves, we cannot promise to show them such majestic cities, such extensive and varied industries and such great manufacturing plants. But we will show them another sort of a plant, a plant, that properly handled, will materialize more wealth than theirs—the cotton plant—flourishing in all its regal glory and perfection, truly "the king," on his own chosen throne, with none to dispute or deny his sovereignty. Thus then, in a nutshell, we see each other's point of vantage, where each each other's point of vantage, where each excels the most. Let Georgia come then for our raw material and we will go to her for the manufactures.

Something more than one hundred dollars was the total realized by the sale. The articles sold were collected from unclaimed goods that had remained at the station house the required length of time.

LITTLE MITCH'S PET SNAKE

South Dakota Child's Strong Affection for a Rattler.

Maxwell Letter to St. Louis Globe. A remarkable instance of a deep affection each other between a child and a snake is to be seen at Minter's Crossing, a small hamlet ying nine or ten miles south of this place. Some time ago James Robinson, a small farmer, living at that time near Milltown, some fifty miles from Minter's Crossing, found his little son, aged six, playing with a large ground rattlesnake. Horrified he rushed to the child and tried to kill the reptile, which, however, succeeded in escaping, while the child, with much indignation, declared that he would not have the snake killed, for it loved him and was good to him. He was found caressing his strange pet again and again, and resisted any attempt to kill it with shricks and tears, which strange pet again and again, and resisted any attempt to kill it with shricks and tears, which caused his father to relent.

But so alarmed was he at the friendship, which he regarded almost in the light of a bewitchment of the evil one, that he sold his farm at Milltown and bought the one where he now resides, near Minter's Crossing, in hopes that the child, no longer having his playmate with him, would forget his extraordinary love for it.

with him, would forget his extraordinary love for it.

They had been established in their new home a couple of menths, and were beginning to believe that the plan had proved efficacious, as the boy, absorbed in the novelty of the change, only occasionally seemed to pine for his pet, when one afternoon Robinson, walking in company with two of his neighbors and his little son, saw a snake lying on the side of the road in apparently a dying condition. He seized a stick and was about to hasten its departure when little "Mitch," as he is called, perceived it also, and with a cry of delight ran to it. The creature raised its head at the boy's voice, and as he knelt by it, wriggled up his body, disappearing in the bosom of his shirt. "Mitch" then joyously informed his father that "his snake had come," and hurried off to revive it with milk. revive it with milk.

that "his snake had come," and hurried off to revive it with milk.

He asserts positively that it is the same snake he loved at Militown, and his father is exually sure that it is, so the poor creature must have traveled forty miles in search of its little friend. After this extraordinary proof of its love and fidelity, the Robinsons say they have not the heart to forbid the companionship, so little "Mitch" and his snake are constantly together, the reptile for the most part being twined about the boy's neck or asleep in his bosom. Peter, as the snake is called, while evincing no particular fondness for the rest of the family, and will never approach one of them, lives in peace with them, but resents the advances of a stranger by coiling itself in position to strike if molested.

The story of the singular friendship, which apparently partakes of the miraculous, is vouched for by reliable citizens at Minter's Crossing, to whom the boy and his pet are familiar sights. Peter shares "Mitch's" bed, eats from the same dish, often playfully capturing morsels as the boy is about to put them in his own mouth, and when "Mitch" goes to school goes also, but on condition that he does not leave the book satchel, from whence his flat head with its bright eyes can be seen occasionally stealing out for a sly look at his friend.

A Sensational Arrest. Special Dispatch to The Globe-D

Waco, Tex., August 3.—On July 30th a lady of unusual personal attractions arrived in Waco, and registered in a leading hotel as Miss Lila Mark, Paris, Tex. Besides being pre-Waco, and registered in a leading hotel as Miss Lila Mark, Paris, Tex. Besides being prepossessing, she was cultivated, and soon made many acquaintances among respectable people. Several young gentlemen showed a decided preference to the new society attraction. Yesterday morning Sheriff R. L. McAfee and Chief of Police J. M. Blain, of Sherman, arrived in Waco, and during the day kept near the hotel of Miss Lila Mark. About sunset the young lady, escorted by a young gentleman, left the hotel and repaired to Captain Allan's restaurant on Franklin street, where they ordered a sumptuous meal. While enjoying their supper the Sherman officer entered and arrested the young lady on a charge, in three counts, by grand jury indictment, reciting theft, arson and burglary. The warrant upon which the arrest was made ordered the Grayson county sheriff to seize upon and convey to Sherman for trial the body of Miss Mecca Southern, the real name, it appears,, of the fair prisoner, Lila Mark being an alias. It is given out here that Miss Lila Mark, alias Miss Mecca Southern, is a lady of prominence on the northern border of Texas, and the arrest is startling and sensational. She is charged with stealing dresses from neighboring girls and selling them. Recently a house burned in Sherman. Goods in that house just before were sold by her in another city. another city.

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 6, 1890.

Opposed by White and Negro Republicans. There is one noteworthy fact that has come to light as the result of the recent agitation over the force bill. The conspirators who conceived it, and who are making strenuous efforts to place it on the statute book, claim that it is intended to promote the interests of the negroes and to build up the republican party in the south. But investigation proves that neither the negro voters nor the white republicans are in favor of the measure.

Ordinarily, the discovery of such opposition on the part of those for whose benefit a legislative measure is intended would be the end of the matter, but it is not so in this case; for the more opposition that is found in the south the more anxious the conspirators and the organs are to carry the force bill through.

The New York Herald, through its southern correspondents, has instituted an investigation which shows that the negroes who are intelligent enough to understand the nature of the force bill are opposed to it, while those who do not understand it care nothing about it whatever-just as they care nothing about the republican party, unless it has the name of Lincoln or of Grant attached

The negroes of intelligence and influence among their race all say: "Let us alone." Their view is that the bill would not only seriously interfere with the growing prosperity of the south, but would interrupt to a great extent the peaceful and cordial relations that now exist between the two races. Their solution of what is called the race problem is not to be found in any special legislation for the negro, but in the attitude of the negro himself-in his patience, industry, frugality and self-respect.

The white republicans-that is to say, the white republicans of any standing and influence in the south-are also opposed to the bill, and they do not hesitate to say so. An effort has been made to show that the recent republican protest in Birmingham was magnified, but every white republican in the state, with one or two insignificant exceptions, is opposed to the bill; and some of them have already made up their minds to vote with the democrats rather than be identifled with a party that is so corrupt, partisan and sectional as the republican party.

Tiliman's New Allies.

When it is stated that the Colored Farmers' Alliance, which numbers 35,000 members in South Carolina, has enlisted in the campaign, it will be evident that the situation will be further complicated there.

But it appears that these colored alliancemen are not traveling on republican lines, as some of the leaders of that party have fondly hoped that they would. A dispatch states that they are pronounced in their support of Tillman, and will rally around the standard of the great farmer and allianceman.

Whatever dissensions and divisions may exist, therefore, among the warring factions in the Palmetto State, it is now practically ertain that there is nothing to fear from th republicans. It was at first thought that they would take advantage of the split in the democratic party and muster their scattered forces for a last fight. The action of these colored alliancemen makes this impos-

But the battle will rage now as never before. Tillman, encouraged by these new adherents, will push his campaign for all it is worth, while his opponents will be equally aggressive and determined in the fight for his defeat. He seems to be leading with a strong hand, and spades will be trumps for 1 day or two.

Blaine on Top.

It is said that Mr. McKinley is getting his forces together for the purpose of fighting Mr. Blaine's reciprocity proposition. Mr. McKinley appears to be moving slowly, but this is natural. A man who has a collapsed conscience dragging after him through the wet grass is not likely to become noted for activ-Ity of movement. He exposed his conscience, it will be remembered, during the tariff debate in the house, and during the melee, it was the victim of a severe sprain, from which it has never entirely recovered. No man can make a successful campaign if he has to haul his conscience after him with

Mr. Blaine, it will be observed, is already in position, and has his forces well in hand. He has captured a great many of the republican outposts, and his following has been materially strengthened by accessions from the republican farmers of the northwest, The probability is that Mr. McKinley will finally be compelled to take his conscience to some convenient hospital where its vital-

Ity may be to some extent restored. Meanwhile, there is no doubt that Mr. Blaine thoroughly represents the con sense of the country in his wholesale attack on the McKinley bill, which opens "not a single new market to the American farmer." The impression that the secretary of state has made on the republican party by his severe criticisms of the McKinley bill is a most profound one, and it is now considered necessary that the president should interpose his insignificant personality between the two factions. There seems to be but one remedy, and that is for the partisan conspirators to allow both the tariff bill and the force bill to go over until the winter session. This course is urged by the Philadelphia Ledger and the Bulletin, both leading protection newspapers, and the fact that it is vigorously urged just at this time, when the republican campaign in Pennsylvania is assuming such a phase as to frighten the protected monopolies, is very significant and encouraging

Mr. Blaine's attack on the McKinley bill is not a good thing for the republican party, but it is a very good thing for the country

Chicago and the South. The commissioners of the Chicago world's fair are a shrewd set of patriots. Notwithstanding the bluff and bluster of the Chicago newspapers, the far-seeing business men of that city were seriously impressed by the popular movement against the force bill, which was so vigorously started by THE CONSTITUTION about two weeks ago. The world's fair commissioners studied the situation and became alarmed. It was plain enough that their exposition would be very incomplete if the rising south-the richest section of the union-held back on account of any real or supposed endorsement of the force bill by the people of the great western metropolis. The more the commissioners thought about it the more serious did the outlook appear. Finally they made a trip to White Sulphur Springs, in Virginia, in order to hold a conference with leading citizens from all parts of the south. The visitors carried out their mission. They drank champagne with the gentlemen at the springs, and assurred them that Chicago was almost solidly against the federal election scheme. They declared their unwavering friendship for the south, and their determination to stand by her.

All this is very pleasant, and very encouraging. The commissioners said and did the right thing in handsome style.

But what is such talk worth? Nothing at all, unless it is backed by the people of Chicago. If the people of that flourishing city agree with the diplomats that spoke for them in Virginia, let them show it by holding meetings and protesting against the force bill. Let their business men get together and use their influence with their senators.

Chicago's soft words are very gratifying, but this is a time for action. It will do no good for our friends in the west to whisper that they are with us; the thing for them to do is to thunder at the senate until they make themselves heard and felt. That will be the way to show whether they are for us or against us.

In the Interest of Agriculture.

In an article in the August Forum, by no less a personage than the celebrated Prince P. Krapotkin, some novel methods in agriculture are proposed. The article in question is entitled "The Possibilities of Agriculture," and is well worth a careful and thorough reading.

The writer, who has thoroughly investigated extensive farming in Europe, tells us that the number of acres now under cultivation in the world can be made to contribute to the support of many times the number of people now alive. For instance, he says that agriculture in the United States alone "can be made to sustain a population at least ten times as dense."

Going on on this line, the writer makes a lovel proposition. It is as follows: Suppose we cultivate one hundred acres in the scientific and intensive way as a part of the great world's exposition at Chicago? It would demonstrate as nothing else could the possibilities of multiplying many times the products of the American farmer," and, of course, would stimulate the agriculture of

The suggestion seems a good one, and the results which might ensue would be well worth the experiment. The prince is in the right line. It is the man who can make two blades of grass grow where only one grew before who is a public benefactor; and there is no doubt that there is great room for improvement in American agriculture.

A Blair Gag Rule.

It seems that Mr. Henry P. Blair, of New Hampshire, whose gift of gab will long remain the wonder of the world, is very anxious for the senate to adopt a gag law which will enable it to pass bills waste of time necessary to discussion and debate. Our Washington correspondent goes so far as to say that Mr. Blair is very vigorous in his demand for a gag law, a statement which we unerstand to mean that the New Hampshire senator is noisily in favor of shutting off debate, for he cannot be vigorous in any direction.

Blair, it will be remembered, made speech on his education bill that lasted for fourteen days-a speech which, for length and stupidity, has never been equaled in the history of parliamentary discussion since the world began. He drove the senators out of the chamber, swamped the Congressional Record and killed his bill forever. Now he has the effrontery-which is purely that of a crank-to rise up and demand

We believe that Blair ought to be accommodated in this matter. Let a rule be adopted which will prevent the New Hampshire senator from making another speech on the floor of the senate. This is a proposition that will be unanimously approved by the country, and ought to de adopted by the senate without division.

By all means give the country a Blair gag rule.

A Hopeless Partisan. Judge Albion W. Tourgee has written a second article on the force bill which is as despondent as the first. The judge believes that the policy of force ought to be adopted and adhered to until the south becomes thoroughly reconstructed but he is ready to give up in despair. He had a lively experience as a carpetbagger in North Carolina, and he knows the spirit and temper of our people. After writing columns on the subject to show that the government would be justified in resorting to very harsh measures, he expresses the opinion that a federal election law would be an utter failure—that the southern people would find a way to get around it or make it a dead letter.

The rational inference from all this tall is that Judge Tourgee thinks that the proposed measure is too mild. What, then does he want? Would he have the southern states turned into military districts again, placed under martial law and taxed to the utmost limit without being represented in congress?

But it makes very little difference what this extreme partisan wants. The point of interest in his deliverances is his utter hopelessness, and his prediction that the force bill will be a failure if it becomes a law. If the republicans are wise the ex-carpetbagger's views will convince them that they are on the wrong track.

THE NEW YORK HERALD seems to be very much afraid that the British will seize and sack some of our seaports. As Mr. Dana would remark, the Herald should keep its shirt on— not all the time, of course, but at least during a part of the time.

SPEAKER REED already finds it necessary to have navy yard laborers imported into his dis-trict in order to be sure of his re-election.

Sometimes he was hard up and offered articles to the papers for almost not but the Sunday Mercury declined it, and he sent it to a periodical, which not only accepted it, but paid him forty dollars for it. This little incident shows that a writer sometimes meets with a rebuff, not because his work is bad, but because he has taken it to the wrong market.

The clock on the old capitol. Will it cease to tell the watchless citizen the

Mr. Jim Collins, one of the owners of the building, recently, in a conversation with Hon. J. J. Mr. Meador has heard that old time-piece strike many, many times, and was averse to the removal, an

-Mr. John Long, of Godfrey district, has about two acres of the finest cotton perhaps in Georgia It is planted in fine, rich earth on Mr. Long's true farm. The varieties are the Hawkins cotton and the Peterkin cotton. The seed was obtained through seedsman David Lowe from Texts. One stem contains, by actual count, more than 500 bolls of cotton. It is estimated that the two acres will produce five bales, the ordinary yield in Georgia is said to be one bale to every five acres These five bales should weigh 2,500 pounds of lint cotton at, say ten cents—$250. They should yield 5,000 pounds of seed-1,600 bushels at twenty cents-$320, total $570 gross.

Conversation Between an Old Man and a Young Man.

From The New York Sun. An old man of great respectability and of greater age—whose age, in fact, has gained for him a reputation beyond his immediate neighborhood, lives near Washington square. While it is certain that he is long past ninety, his exact age seems known to no one outside of his own family. Rumors have made him as old as one hundred and five; but then no one knows how much faith to put in these

He was taking the air the other morning when he was joined by a young fellow who slackened his pace to accommodate it to that of the old man and then entered into polite conversation. He commenced first on the warmth of the morning, then on the clearness of the sky, and finally he ventured to prophesy that it would not rain all day. To each of these remarks the old man as-sented with a grunt peculiar to advanced age. When the young man had exhausted these topics he made up his mind that he had properly paved the way to the qustion he chiefly wanted to ask. With an apologetic cough and a tone of marked oliteness, he began :

"Mr. So and So, may I make so bold as to ask how old you are? There seems to be no two persons among your friends who agree as to your

"You may," said the old man, who stopped for a moment to lean on his stick and to gaze benignly into his companion's face. There was a silence which the young man thought every minute would be broken by the old man, who would probably follow up these words by an answer to probably follow up these words by an answer to his request. But as the old man still continued to lean on his stick and to gaze into his questioner's face, the silence grew so embarrassing that the young man felt obliged to ask: "Well, sir, how old are you?", "None of your d-d business, sir!" testily answered the other, and turning his back, he hobbled away, leaving the young man to ponder on the art of asking questions.

A STRONG PROTEST. What a Bright Woman Thinks of Modern Dress. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward.

"O women! queens of life! bestir your hearts. Rouse your dull perceptions of the monstrous things you do and suffer to be done. Call the fact by its right name. Blush for it and abhor it, for it is abhorrent. So long as you take your fashions from the demi-monde, wherein are ye better than these? * * Between the ballet girl who dances for bread, and the society girl who dresses as she does for a title or fortune, there is a moral gap to be sure; but for one I would take my chances with the ballet girl if I had to face the social standards of another life with either record behind me. Does the lady returning from the think that she can sit with her body half exposed in the uncurtained window of the cafe, before which men and women of the street stand gazing, and count herself the moral superior of that other woman looking in? Tell us, my lady, if you can, when you exhibit yourself for promiscuous surf-bathing, before a thousand spectators, in a bathing costume which stops—where it does—how much more modest are you than the circus daneer, or the mermaid in the 10-cent variety show? Let us have done with playing about the fire, and call a low thing low, and out with it. An immodest dress does not cover a modest woman. If your costume is loose and vulgar, you can blame no voice or pen which calls you loose and vulgar, too If the dress is disgraceful the wearer is disgraced. The woman who dresses indecently—never mind who, never mind where, never mind why—is indecent. The woman who dresses without shame is shameless. By their robes ye shall know them."

America's greatest horseman says that the ave rage horse reasons almost as much as a human being but that ugly animals are born that way and that time spent in trying to improve their dispositions is thrown away. He adds that a horse which has once run away should be shot, as he is as dangerous as dynamite.

THE CONVENTION ORGANIZED.

Long before the hour for the convention to organize the crowd had gathered at the courthouse. Both the friends of Mr. Snelson and Mr. Terrell were confident of victory. There were fifty-five delegates to the convention and it was known to everybody that they were divided as follows: Of Meriwether's 15 votes. Terrell had 9 and

Of Coweta's 18 votes, Terrell had 18-the full delegation Campbell's full delegation of twelve votes were for Snelson. Of Douglass's 10 votes, Terrell had at least 1. Snelson, however, claimed a full delegation and it was here that the real contest was. With 1 vote from Douglass Mr. Terreil had 28, a majority of the convention. The convention was called to order by W. A. Post, chairman of the democratic committee of the district.

Mr. Post made a ringing democratic speech. He hoped for harmony and good feeling, that whoever was naminated he would be supported by every true democrat.

He then stated that nominations for temporary chairman were in order. J. W. Brown moved that T. B. Swanson be made temporary chairman. P. H. Brewster moved as a substitute that P. S. Wilcoxon be made temporary chairman.

THE FIRST SKIRMISH,

The question came up as to who were entitled to vote. Mr. Brewster moved that each delegate report his name to the presiding offi-cer and that the president declare those delegates entitled to vote who were prima facie from each county . reports the names of the delegates from that county. There was a number of other substitutes and matters began to look confusing. Then

Dr. T. R. Whitley, of Douglass, made the following motion as a substitute for all: That the name of each original delegate be reported who was selected in each county, and no person be received as proxy unless he has written authority from such original delegate. His motion was put and carried. Hon, P. S. Wilcoxon, of Newman, was then elected temporary chairman by a vote of 28 to 18; Douglass county, except Dr. T. R. Whitley,

THE CONTEST FROM DOUGLASS.

Christian, a committee of five was appointed to report on contest from Douglass.

Dr. Whitley was elected as a delegate from Douglass by the Douglass convention and was instructed by that convention to vote for Meriwether's choice. He considered Terrell her choice and Snelson found it out and appointed -or attempted to approint-Mr. J. L. Lang in

Dr. Whitley's place. Mol The chair appointed as this committee on contest; Messrs. J.W. Parks, of Meriwether; P. H. Brewster and W. Y. Atkinson, of Coweta; Dr. Smith, of Campbell; and Elam Christian, of Douglass. This committee retired, and after some time reported to the convention a majority and minority report.

The majority report was in favor of Dr. Whitley, the regularly elected delegate, while the minority favored Mr. Lang.

SOME LIVELY SPEECHES.

Mr. Peavy moved the adoption of the minority report, which contemplated the seating of Snelson's man, Lang. In support of this motion he made a strong speech, in the course of which he threatened on behalf of the Snelson men to withdraw from the convention.

Hon. P. H. Brewster made, in reply to this, one of the strongest speeches ever heard in Campbell county. It was a ringing enuncia tion of democratic principles, and was heartily received. He paid his respects to what Mr. Peavy had said, and handled that gentleman's remarks "without gloves."

WHITLEY IS SEATED.

Then the vote on Mr. Peavy's motion was taken. The result was a tie vote-27 and 27neither Whitley or Lang voting. The chairman declared that, the vote on the minority report being a tie, it was lost, and Dr. T. R. Whitley was seated as the original delegate from Douglass.

A great deal of confusion followed this announcement. The Snelson men saw the mis-take they had made and there was a veritable Order was soon restored, however, and Dr. T. R. Whitley was elected permanent chair-

When Dr. Whitley was presented to the convention as permanent chairman, some of Snelson's supporters were rather boisterous and insulting in their remarks, but by the exercise of considerable tact and good judge ment the doctor soon restored quietude. His remarks were very fitting to the occasion and stamped him at once as one of the grittiest men in Georgia. He thanked the convention for the honor conferred and announced the convention ready for business. The majority rule was adopted on all questions. Mr. Hatchett and Mr. Murray were made permanent secre-

MR. TERRELL NOMINATED.

Hon. J. M. Terrell was then placed in nomition for senator of the twenty-sixth district. The roll call was ordered and Mr. Terrell was nominated on the first ballot, receiving twentyeight votes, a majority of the votes in the convention. Mr. Snelson's name was not presented to the convention, and though his supporters had taken active part in the organization of the convention, they refused to vote for or against Mr. Terrell.

Hon. J. M. Terrell was escorted to the stand and accepted the nomination. He said no man, not even his enemies, could say taught against his democracy or his personal character. He was asked how he was on the subtreasury bill and he replied that that bill was a national one with which he had nothing to do.

Mr. Terrell thanked the convention for the nomination, and promised to serve his constit-uency as faithfully as was in his power to do. His speech was warmly received, and was frequently applauded. GORDON FOR THE SENATE.

A motion was made that the Hon. J. B. Gordon be endorsed as the choice of this district as United States senator; this motion was put and carried unanimously by acclamation, not a single vote against.

DR. WHITLEY TALKS. Dr. Whitley, the chairman, made a state ment in which he said he saw all the members of his delegation today, and proposed to them, as there was a difference of opinion among them as to who was the choice of Meriwether, that they support a resolution referring the matter to the democracy of Meriwether for settlement, and that whoever was so decided as the choice of Meriwether be declared the domocratic nominee for senator.

He said he had submitted the proposition to Mr. Terrell, and that Mr. Terrell agreed to accept it. His brother delegates from Dougass refused, however, to agree to this. Dr Whitley then went on to say that he conscientiously believed that Terrell was the choice of Meriwether, that it was his duty to support him under the instructions from his county, and that he felt assured that the democracy of Douglass would endorse his course when placed in possession of all the facts and of the proposition which Terrell was willing to accept referring the whole question to Meriwether for settlement. He had been told by Snelson men that he would be politically dead in Douglass if he voted for Terrell. To such he had only to say that he was one of the livest corpses in Georgia, and that he had rather be right and politically dead, than to do wrong and be politically popular. He assured the convention that Douglass would give the nominee a majority against anybody else, for Douglass democrats have ever been true. In conclu sion Dr. Whitley addressed his colleagues in the Douglass delegation, admonishing them against taking part in any bolt from the convention. "We have divided on some things." said the doctor, "but we cannot afford to divide in our support of the democratic nominee."

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE. On motion, each county presented a man as a member of the executive committee. Campbell and Douglass refused to name any one and, on motion, R. M. Holley was elected Campbell and R. R. Bomer from Douglass by the convention. On motion, Dr. T. R. Whitley was elected chairman of the democratic executive committee of the Thirty-sixth senatorial district. Then the convention adjourned.

THE SNELSON MEN MEET. The Snelson men then had a meeting and organized. By acclamation they moved that A. J. Snelson be nominated by them. They then determined to adjourn subject to the call of T. B. Swanson, the chairman. Mr. Swanson said he was not satisfied, and would not be until Snelson was nominated. That they would all go home, and consult the suballiances in every county and see what they wanted, and then meet again. Mr. Swanson stated in his speech that there were principles dearer to him than democracy.

Then the Snelson men adjourned and all was

There no longer exists in the minds of the public any doubt that the ALASKA REFRIGERATOR does produce dry, cold air in its provision chamber. A practical use for many years in various countries and climates has proved beyond question

The peculiar and scientific construction of the ALASKA creates a thorough and constant circulation, by which all vapors arising from foods in the provision chamber are condersed in the ice pan, nd run off with the melting ice. FOR THE STATE CONVENTION.

Candidates and Their Friends Are on Hand.

HON. W. J. NORTHEN IN THE CITY,

And by Tonight the City Will Be Full of Delegates.

The clans are gathering. Already the hotel corridors have put on a convention aspect and familiar faces are to be seen everywhere. Many of Georgia's prominent men are here, but, of course, most of the delegates will not leave their homes until today. Every train today will bring delegates, candidates and their friends and spectators—for of these last the indications are that there will be many. Hon. W. J. Northen, Georgia's next governor, reached the city a 5:45 o'clock last evening. He came up on the Georgia train and was accompanied by his friend and enthusiastic supporter, Hon. Seaborn Reese. Colonel Northen went at once to the home of his son, and he was not to be seen about the hotels at all during the evening. The Hancock county delegation-brass band and allwill arrive to day and will doubtless create a sensation when it gets here.

There were but few delegates in the crowds that came in yesterday. Of course the chief interest was in the race for commissioner, and in that for attorney general, and all sorts of opinions were expressed. The wish was father to the thought in most cases. The Anderson and Lester men are both confident, and so are the Henderson men and the Nesbitt men, while Mr. Hunnicutt was looked upon as a possi-

For chairman of the convention only one man was talked of last night, but there will be other names presented to the convention. That one was Emmett Womack. Colonel Womack hasn't put in an appearance yet, but he'll be here today, and as he is loaded with new stories a hearty reception is assured him. Among the others are Hon. Jim Smith, of Oglethorpe, Hon. W. A. Little, of Columbus, Or. de Jarnette and Colonel C. B. Wooten.

Chairman Berner, of the state committee, was in the city for a few hours yesterday-long enough to leave the following call for the state executive committee.

August 5, 1890.—The democratic executive committee will meet in the senate chamber at 10 o'clock, a. m., on Thursday the 7th instant.

ROBERT BENNER, Chairman. The Kimball will be headquarters for Colonel Northen, whose friends have secured for that purpose parlor 104, just off the first Hon. R. T. Nesbitt will have headquarters at parlor 106, while Hon. J. B. Hunnicutt's friends have selected 108 for his headquarters

Colonel Clifford Anderson's friends will make the ball room their place of meeting. At the Markham, Judge Hender-son's headquarters will be found. They are in room 110, and Colonel Living-ston, president of the alliance, and the next congressman from this district will be found at the Markham, and most of the alliance delegates will, it is understood, be quartered there. Both hotels will present lively scenes during convention days.

THE FIGHT FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL Both Sides at Work and Considerable Interest in the Race.

The friends of both Messrs. Anderson and Lester were hard at work yesterday. Both Judge Anderson and Judge Lester were in Hall county during the day, and will be here today.

Judge Anderson has selected as his headquarters) the breakfast room of the Kimball house, and asks that all of his friends, who will be in the city today and tomorrow, make themselves at home there. Captain Clifford Anderson, Jr., of Atlanta, who was representing his father in yesterday's manœuvers, was seen by a Constitution reporter, to whom he said:

"I have been absent from the city for more than thirty days, and did not know until I reached Chattanooga, on August the 1st, that my father was having any serious opposition; else I should have returned long before. I was in Minnesota, where I had been unable to see a Georgia paper for about four weeks. But since my return I have been thoroughly investigating the situation, and while the race is much closer than we had ever had any reason to anticipate, we are certain of my father's renomination; the votes in-structed for him, and those uninstructed. who have communicated with us directly, being already sufficient to give him the nomination. We do not expect, however, to rest here, but myself and all of my father's friends are prepared to continue a most aggressive fight. You may say, however, without doubt, that Clifford Anderson will be the next attorney general." LIKEWISE LESTER IS CONFIDENT.

The friends of Judge Lester are equally as confident as those of Judge Anderson. They were hard at work yesterday, catching the delegates as they came in, and were exultant over the action of the counties that named their delegates yesterday, every one of which they claimed for Lester. A warm friend of Judge Lester's said last night:

"I do not think that there is any doubt but "I do not think that there is any doubt but that the convention will decide the attorney generalship in favor of Judge Lester. We think we can count a majority as the matter now stands, and not depending upon the uninstructed votes, the majority of which we expect to get. We are more confident today than we have ever been, and see no reason for disappointment. On the other hand everything is bright, and Judge Lester's chances are way above par."

AMONG THE POLITICIANS.

Colonel Tom Hardeman came up from Macon during the afternoon, and was, as long as he was about the Kimball corridors, surcounded by admiring friends who expressed their pleasure at seeing the "old war horse on hand. "I come up ahead of our delegation," said Colonel Hardeman. "Wash Dessau may come tomorrow morning, but the others will hardly be here before tomorrow evening. Of course we're all for Clifford

"Buck" Candler was the first of all the delegates to reach the city.

Seab Reese was another early arrival. He came with Colonel Northen and was, of course, much sought after. There is no more popular man in middle Georgia. Everybody in the state knows the former congressman from the Eighth, and his ambrosial locks and expansive shirt bosom have been familiar objects at every state convention for years. Colonel Reese is at the head of the National Campaign club and has done valuable work for Hancock's favorite son.

Joe Terrell, fresh from his victory at Fairburn, was the most popular fellow about the Kimball corridors after he reached there last evening. He was overwhelmed with congrat ulations. No county or senatorial race in the state has attracted so much interest as has this one between Terrell and Snelson, and there was but one opinion heard last night-that the thirty-sixth district had done exactly the right thing. Joe Terrell is one of Georgia's most prominent and most substantial young men and he has friends all over the state who rejoice in his success. He bore his honors modestly: "It is very gratifying to have won," he said, "and it is especially so now that I find how many triends." friends I have. My friends throughout th district have made a gallant fight for me and I certainly appreciate it."

Judge Bigham, of Troup, was another familiar figure at the Kimball. "Pil not be here for the convention," he explained to me. "I am on my way to New York and have to leave here before Thursday. I'm sorry, but it's a case of necessity."

Ed Shubrick was one of the happiest men in the crowd. He explained his happiness by showing a telegram from John Shannon, giving Elbert county's vote for congress, "You see by this," said Colonel Shubrick, 'that Colley had more votes there than both Olive and Lawson together. That puts Colonel Colley ahead in the eighth district race. He now has ten votes, while Judge Lawson and Colonel Olive have eight votes each.' He thinks Colley's the man.

Captain Wes Murphy, another of the oldtimers, was greeted by friends on every corner. He is here to keep Judge Henderson.

"Ne'er did defeated candidate take defeat more gracefully than do I," said Frank Beverett as he grasped Ed Callaway's hand and wrote "would-be secretary of state" opposite his name on the register.

"Yes, I was knocked out in the first round-I know that," said Frank. other, I didn't get the votes, and you know without votes a candidate for office can't do much. If you don't knowthat, run for office and try it on."

Hon. Carter Tate, who has been a decidedly lively candidate for congress in the ninth, but who will have the pleasure of congratulating Tom Winn upon being Allen Candler's succes sor, echoed Leverett's sentiments.

"My toes are turned to the daisies so far as this race is concerned, I know that," said Carter, "but I'll be with them next time. You mark that. The trouble with me this time was that I devoted to much time to Judge Jim Brown. But we all learn by experience.

Hon. James Postell, of Glynn, is another delegate who came in yesterday.

General Phil Cook and Colonel Bob Hardeman spent a short time at the Kimball house today. Strange to say, neither presented evidence of being scared by the outlook.

Dr. Kenan had a greeting for each of the prominent men as they came in. He knows them all. Dr. T. R. Whitely, of Douglass, who cast the vote which made Joe Terrell the democratic nominee for senator from the thirty-sixth district, was a much sought-after man about the hotels. His explanation of his vote was given in a few words. "In Douglass," he said, "the convention instructed the delegates who were named to represent the county in the sena-torial convention to vote for Meriwether's choice for the position, the right of that county to name the senator under the rotation system being recognized. The contest in Meriwether was by districts and Mr. Terrell got a majority of the districts. That plan of taking the county's vote was the choice of Mr. Snelson's friends. Mr. Terrell had nine votes and Mr. Snelson six-so Mr. Terrell was clearly the choice of the county. the instructions of my county I felt bound to vote for Mr. Terrell, and in my opinion every Douglass county vote should have gone for

Look out for Bill Harris today. He'll be on Every town will bring delegates today. Candidates and their friends seemed to be in a majority yesterday, but today it will be

Dr. Nelms was another local celebrity who vas on hand yesterday. He is fighting Judge Henderson.

The meeting then adjourned.

The new directors then held a meeting and elected E. W. Marsh as president and Willis Ragan vice president. There was no secretary elected as it was thought best to have a man to keep the books of the Georgia Improvment Company as well as to act as secretary, and the president was authorized to make this appointment. A committee of three was appointed to vote the stock of the Georgia Improvment Company at the meeting of the Atlanta and Florida Railroad Company, to be held on the 15th instant. There being no further business, the meeting then adjourned

New Roads to Fort Valley.

The Atlanta and Florida people are interested just now in the plans for two new railroads to Fort Valley.

The Americus Investment Company, of which Mr. H. C. Bagley is president, is interested in building forty-two miles from Cordele to Fort Valley.

Then Mr. W. A. Heath, of the old firm of Tanner, Currier & Heath, who lives now at Empire, Ga., is interested with a number of gentlemen in building a road from Hawkins-ville to Grovania. This is in course of construction now and is to be extended to Fort Valley.

"Why," said he, "she has already two great trunk lines, and with a road sixteen miles long she can get a through line from New York to New Orleans, another road to Atlanta and to New Orleans, another road to Atlanta and a direct line to Savannah and Brunswick."

When asked how this could be gained, he said that it not only could, but would be had, if the people of that town would meet certain reasonable conditions. "The Georgia, Carolina and Northern, the Covington and Macon, the Middle Georgia and Atlantic and the Georgia Midland are sympathetic corporations. Well, the Georgia Midland will build from McDonough, on the East Tennessee, to Newborn, on the Middle Georgia and Atlantic, the road that Colonel Machen is building from Atlanta to Savannah, and if the little stretch of sixteen miles could be built from Madison to Newborn, to meet the extenion of the Georgia Midland, it would give that city a through line from New York to New Orleans, another line to Atlanta and a line to Savannah without change of cars." direct line to Savannah and Brunswick.

twin babies of Mr.land)Mrs. John T. Haunson, died at the home in West End last night at half past seven. Mr. Haunson is in Chauneey and has been telegraphed.

He Is Improving.—Mr. H. M. Abbett, treasurer of the Atlanta and West Point railway, who has been quite ill with the fever for several weeks. Is now improving rapidly, and will, his physician thinks, be out in a few days.

Will Meet Today.—The county commissioners will meet in regular session in their quarters in the county courthouse this afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. The business so far booked for the session is purely routine work.

Will Report This Morning—Pesident Beatie and other members of the Atlanta Horticultural Society, will report at the meeting this morning about the session of the State Horticultural Society, at Fort Valley. Important measures will be discussed, the leading one being the holding of a horticultural institute here next summer. Several members of the Griffin society are expected to be present, and may address the society.

Doing Good Work.—The negro democratic weekly, published in this city by C. E. Yarboro, is doing a good work, and deserves the support of those who want to see the negro vote taken from under the bondage of republican partisans. The paper is making good headway, and its editor, in earnestly advocating peace and harmony between races and sections, is doing more good work for his people than any other half-dozen negro papers in the south.

A Successful Journalist—The Atlanta friends of Addison Knowles, under whose splendid control the Greenesboro Home-Journal has met such abundant success, were glad to see him in the city yesterday. Mr. Knowles is one of the most prominent editors of Georgia's weekly papers, and the Home-Journal is as bright and newsy as a paper can be.

The Young Men's Library.—The board of directors of the Young Men's Library Association held a regular monthly meeting yesterday, with President William Slaton in the chair. Messrs. G.R. Forbes, W. D. Ellis, E. M. Mitchell, A. A. Meyer, J.R. Nutting, George R. De Saussure and W. Haight were in attendance. The session was harmonions and spirited, many telling points being made in the interest of the library. Four hundred and fifty-five more books were issued in July, 1890, than in the corresponding month of last year. New members are coming in rapidly. The library is growing in usefulness and prosperity. Let the public encourage the management by continuing to join.

A Chinney Burns Out,—About 11 o'clock last night the fire department was called out by an alarm, sounded from box 42, at the corner of Decatur and Ivy streets. A burning chinmey on Ivy street was the cause of the alarm. No damage was done.

For Divorce.—Suit for total divorce was insti-tuted yesterday by John Thomas against his wife, Susan Thomas. Adultery is the ground upon which the libel is brought.

Back from a Short Vacation.—Judge W. L. Calhoun returned from Lithis Springs yesterday. He has been spending the past week there, and is feeling the better for his stay at the Sweetwater Park hotel.

Taken to Dallas.—Deputy Sheriff Q. W. Pusson came to Atlanta from Paulding county yesterday after Sanford Flemister, the negro arrested Monday for attempting to assault a white lady living near Dallas. The officer left for that place at 11 o'clock last flight. At the time of the attempt excitement ran pretty high in the neighborhood.

Pledger Fined.—Bill Pledger, who holds office in Washington, as one of Buck's favorities, was meet two dollars and costs for contempt of court-fefore the recorder yesterday. He also settled his license tax, which was the original cause of his trouble with the police department. Hon. THE ELEPHANT IS HERE

NEMO IS MADE COMFORTABLE AT PIEDMONT PARK.

A Fine Animal of Large Size and Great Intelligence—Mr. Otto, the German Keeper, Talks of Her.

The elephant, the sure enough elephant, is here at last, and she's a whopper.

The announcement of her arrival in yester-day's Constitution has created a tremendous undercurrent of excitement among the young folks, and they are on the tip-toe of expect-

It is safe to say the children will not be disappointed. She is a magnificent animal and much larger than even the purchasers realized from the description. Some idea of her immense size may be had from the fact that she weighs two and a half tons, or 5,000 pounds. This is no guess work, for Mr. Otto, the keeper, had her weighed just before she left Hamburg, in

One of the funniest questions the keeper had to answer was when Mr. Kiser inquired whether the elephant got sea-sick.

"No," said Mr. Otto, "but she is very tired. She has been on her feet for nearly thirty

It was, indeed, a tiresome trip, especially in the car from Philadelphia here. Mr. Otto had to remain in the same car with his huge pet and he has had no sleep for several days. When the 4:30 freight reached Piedmont park yesterday morning, the elephant's car was switched off. Mr. T. J. Kelly and President James R.

Wylie, of the exposition, were at the grounds. Keeper Haven was there also to assist. Mrs. Wylie accompanied Mr. Wylie, and was an interested spectator.

When a solid place had been found for the elephant to walk out on, Mr. Otto said, "Come on, Nemo," and the great beast stepped out of the car briskly as if she was glad to get into the open air again. She marched across the open space between the railroad and the poultry building as complacently as if she owned the park and the other gentlemen followed as the elephant led the way. When the poultry building was reached there was an abrupt terrace six feet high and no way of ascent but ordering steps made of stout timber. The Atlanta gentlem were at a loss to know how the elephant would make the rise.

Not so Mr. Otto. He stepped briskly up the steps and Nemo followed as easily as her keeper had gone before her. The poultry house had been selected because it was a large airy enclosure with a ground floor. Mr. Kelly had fenced off a big stall, and plank was laid for Nemo to stand upon. First a big stake had to be driven down, and Mr. Otto fastened the chain on the elephants front feet to the stake.

Nemo drew her feet well together, balanced her immense weight over them and commenced that ceaseless swaying of the body for which elephants are peculiar. It looks more the the swaying of a ponderous swing with the swing end up than anything that can be called to mind. She was very thirsty, and several buckets of water were brought. She thrust her trank into the bucket, drew the water into it, and then lifted the trunk to her mouth. Having thrust the trunk into her throat, she sent the water down, and proceeded to empty another bucketful.

The elephant manifests a strong affection for her keeper, and is restless as soon as he is out of her sight. She makes her discontent known either by a shrill squeal, or by a deep muttering, which somewhat resembles the "moo" of a cow when her calf is taken away, only it is a deeper sound, which seems to come from the bowels of the earth, and resembles distant thunder. She is docile and obeys her keeper implicitly. Like most elephants, she is fond of good things, although her staple diet is 100 pounds of hay per day. Yesterday she took rools and cakes from various hands and ato them with great relish.

Nemo's History. Nemo's history was learned from-Mr. Otto, her keeper. Though only twelve years old she is a traveled elephant, and has pressed the soil of Europe, Asia and America. In 1884 she was in this country traveling with Barnum's circus, and Mr. Otto, who had charge of her then, says she was exhibited in Atlanta

This is therefore the, second time some of the Atlanta people have seen Nemo, but she has grown almost out of recollection in six years. Then she was only six feet high. Now she is six feet eleven inches and much heavier. The height gives no adequate idea of her she appears larger than most of the elephants which appear in circus processions. She has been trained to perform such tricks as standing on her head and hind feet. Mr. Otto says she has been quietly resting at Hamburg for a long time and has not performed this feat for a year, but he is confident he will be able to put her through her old tricks by next week, after she has rested and become accustomed to aer surroundings. Some time ago she traveled with a circus in Russia and went too far into the cold climate. The result was that one of her ears was frostpitten, and she lost the lower edge of it, but the loss is scarcely noticeable. Both Nemo and her keeper are very tired, and both will feel much better after a few days of rest. The elephant lay down yester day afternoon for the first time since leaving Hamburg, and Mr. Otto enjoyed a good night' sleep on terra firma.

Strict orders have been issued to admit no one, and the orders will be enforced.

PAVING WEST END.

The Councilmen Determine Upon a Plan to Pave the Streets of the Little City. The city councilmen of West End have de-ided to improve the streets of their town. They have closed a contract for paving Gordon street from Caldwell's store to Peeples Street.

The distance is about four blocks, and the furnishing an experimental test of the plan.

The system consists of putting in stones cut four by four with smooth face, which will be well fitted between each other. Over this a permanent cement will cover all angularities of the stones, making a perfectly smooth pavement. The contract has been closed with Venable Brothers, and the work will begin part Monday.

A BIG MEETING.

THE DIRECTORS OF PIEDMONT EX-POSITION IN SESSION.

ome Important Matters Discussed and Settled-Sticking to the Military Reg-ulations-Other Notes.

The exposition directors were in session last

And an enthusiastic meeting it was As the time for the opening of the great show draws each day nearer at hand the interest among the directors and managers constantly increases, and encouraged by the unbounded promise that now hovers over the affairs of the exposition they are firmer than ever before in their determination to make it the greatest ever known in the south.

The meeting last night was characterized by the eranestness of every member of the board of directors to work for the best interest of the A full attendance filled the president secretary's office, and the meet-was called to order by President Wylie at 80'clock. TO HEDGE THE GROUNDS. The first business taken up by the meeting of directors was the report of the committee appointed last week to visit the hedges of the Dayton Hedge Company, in Tennessee, with a view to having one placed around the exposition grounds. The report was most favorable.

It showed that the committee went first to Memphis and inspected there hedges in all stages and growths.

The hedges give entire satisfaction to their owners all through Tennessee, and besides being the prettiest fence known, are dense and well adapted for inclosing large fields, parks and the like. The committee found absolutely nothing ob-

The committee found absolutely nothing objectionable to it for fencing the exposition grounds and recommended it most highly for this purpose.

A committee, consisting of Messrs. H. L. Wilson, John A. Miller, Joseph Kingsberry, Edward C. Peters, Edward Wachendorf and Captain James Wylie, was appointed to take such steps as are necessary to have the hedge planted as soon as practicable.

The plants will be put out early in the fall, and within a few years the fence will be complete.

This is a great step for the exposition directors, and will make the appearance of Piedmont park a most delectable retreat.

THE GRADY CADETS.

been decided by the committee not to adopt the amendment suggested at the last meeting to Rule 1st of the military regulations. The rule will be adhered to as it was first laid down, and reads as follows: Rule 1. Companies entering the contest must belong to the volunteer forces of the state.

This shuts out the Grady Cadets from the state drills at the present situation of that company's affairs, and unless they are admit-ted to the Georgia forces before the exposition, they will have no hand in the drills at all.

It will be a matter of disappointment to this live and energetic company, which has already taken its stand among the best military organizations in Georgia.

THE EXPOSITION WILL FLOAT.

The matter of representing the exposition

The matter of representing the exposition in the summer festival on a float was decided

It was the sense of the meeting to have a most attractive float in the procession. An interesting discussion ensued as to the style of representation, but the matter was left with the following committee: Messrs. B. B. Crew, Joseph Thompson, J. W. English and Martin A morous.

YOUR OWN LIFE.

May Be Saved if You Will Think of Yourself a Moment and Then Act.

Ulceration of the bowers, usually called "itching piles," is a very common affliction, and not cause ing much pain is usually considered of small indeportance, and the disease is allowed to develop into a very grave affliction. The symptoms of this trouble are moisture and itching around the anus, pain across the hips (low down), diarrhea, and irregular bowels, pain in lower part of same, indigestion, and a long train of nervous symptoms, differing in nearly every case); and in the female, who are more liable to be affected than the male, many symptoms usually attributed to female diseases. This disease is a very fruitful cause of many diseases refusing to yield to the treatment of your physician, and places you on the list of "incurables." The results of neglecting this affliction are terrible to contemplate, a general impairment of health, frequently 80 slow as to be scarcely noticeable, derangement of the nervous system, unfitting you for business or enjoyment of pleasure, the development of cancer and stricture of bowels, or loss of power of controlling same when happlly death intervenes and relieves the sufferer of histortures. This is a terrible picture, but a true one. You may by neglect make this your own; can you take the risk when a cure is offered you? Treating rectal diseases exclusively for a number of years, I am able to offer you a cure without the usual pain attending the treatment employed by one who has not the experience in treating these diseases. The mode of treatment I employ for their cure is mild and is not unpleasant in anyway, as I use neither knife or caustic applications. I have cured many, and I am willing that they should tell you of my success if you wish it. I can furnish you their names if you prefer it. On my past success I am willing to stand or fall. Can I offer you anything fairer? If you wish to investigate what I have said, I extend to you an invitation to consult me, (free of cost,) and I will prove all I May Be Saved if You Will Think of Yourself a Moment and Then Act.

THIRTY-THIRD DEGREE.

THE HIGHEST CIRCLE IN THE MASONIC ORDER

In Which a Vacancy Was Caused by Captain Calvin Fay's Death—How a Successor Will Be Selected.

A Mason of the thirty-third degree. They are awful scarce, and mighty hard to

The death of Captain Calvin Fay, Sunday last, leaves but one thirty-third in Georgia, and has aroused a deep interest among the Masons of the state in the highest degree of their order.

Who will succeed Captain Fay? The indications just now are that Captain Fay's successor will be Hon. Harry Stock-

Mystery surrounds the thirty-third degree of Masonry just like it envelopes the blue lodge, only it is thicker and harder to penetrate. Even a Mason of the thirty-second degree does not know his brother who sits upon the

Of the thirty-second there are quite a num ber in Atlanta, but none of them can tell who will be elevated to the place made vacant by Captain Fay's death.

"You see," said one of the best posted Masons in the city"we who are not thirty-threes know very little about it and for many reasons don't care much to talk about it."

"How is a thirty-third degree Mason made?" "By the grand conclave of that degree. When a vacancy occurs in the ranks a bright Masen, who is eligible and in every way competent, is elected." "Is there much rush for it among Masons?"

"None at all. If a Mason who is competent ever seeks the place, that act alone will always prevent him from getting it, not only then, but forever afterward."

"There is only one thirty-third in a state, isn't it?"

That's wrong. I think there is only one active thirty-third, but he can appoint an assistant or two who can work for him. Then there is such a thing as a superanuated thirty-third." "I think Georgia once had two active thirtythirds," said another Mason present, "One lived in Athens and the other lived in Savannah." "Atlanta has lost two thirty-third degree Masons this year," said another gentlemanlof the order in the party. "Brother Chandler, who died on Marietta street a few months ago, was a retired thirty-third. So was Brother Fay."

was a retired thirty-third. So was Brother Fay."

"Then Georgia is without a thirty-third?"

"No. The active thirty-third lives in Savannah. Dr. Nuba he is. I don't think Brother Fay was an active one."

"How is a thirty-third made?"

"Elected, as I have told you, from the brotherhood by the supreme grand lodge. Then he attends the meeting of the thirty-third in Washington, and comes away a better man than ever, and knowing more than ever."

"Who will get the place?"

"That's hard to tell. Brother Harry Stockdell is one of the brightest Masons in the south. He is young, in love with the work, and will likely be selected. He has been appointed, I believe, in the place of Brother Chandler."

In Captain Fay's death the Masonic order has lost one of its brightest, best and most devoted members.

On Monday night his demise was officially announced in Couner de Lion commandary and a committee was appointed to draft resolutions touching the death.

Last night the chapters took the some action.

CASTLEBERRY—The friends and acquaintances of the late Captain M. T. Castleberry are invited to attend his funeral which will take place from the residence, 164 West Peters street, this morning at 10 a.m., August 6, 1890.

IN MEMORIAM

M. T. Castleberry. Above all things, he was an honest man—that "noblest work of God." Self-made, he developed a grand character from the most adverse conditions and circumstances, and won the lasting respect of all who knew him. Justice and honor were first principles with him. He scorned a lie, and pretence, even in jest, was impossible to his nature. Making no open professions, he lived the golden rule, doing, not as he was done by but as he would have others ido to him. He followed the straight path of duty no matter where it led. "Even his failings leaned to virtue's side," and one of the greatest of these was overconfidence in human nature. Suspicion was foreign to his soul, and the hardest blows life held for him were dealt by those he had trusted and benefited. Losing the accumulations of many honest years through misplaced confidence, he wasted no time in words of despair or reproach, wasted no time in words of despair or reproach, but took up the burden anew, and labored through years of affliction and approaching age until he could pay his creditors 100 cents on the dollar. The victim of an incurable malady, his last four years have been a record of heroism, of martyrdom for the comfort and happiness of others. "Self last" was ever his motto.

others. "Self last" was ever his motto.

In war and peace a true patriot, he gave his life and services gladly to the cause he loved. He received his wounds in the face with a soldier's pride, bearing to the grave a bullet-hole from Antietam. With him the war ended in '64, and he cared nothing for veterans' leagues or reulvals of the old issues of the past. Unassuming and unpretentious in peace, as brave and unflinching in war, he gave his allegiance to the new south and to Atlanta, whom he helped to to rebuild from her ashes, and guided in counsel during the stormy days of reconstruction. To these sterner virtues he added the gentler ones of the fireside. He was the soul of tenderness, loyalty, patience and devotion in his home, courteous to all, as became one of "Nature's noblemen." A model husband and proud and tender father, he spared not himself, unselfishly giving all and asking nothing. But half appreciated by those who knew him best, the multitude who shared his benefactions may bless his memory, as they blessed not his life, with gratitude. His hand was ever open to charity. If every generous deed of his should rise to crown his memory no loftier or worthier monument could be reared to heaven. To these sterner virtues he added the gentler to heaven.

His large soul could be confined by no narrow creed. He lived and died in the firm faith that God would judge him by his deeds and deal by him as fairly as he had dealt by his fellow-man. In his hands we trust him.

IN THE PARADE.

The Collins Brick Co.'s Floats Take Twenty Mules.

MAKING SHOES IN THE PROCESSION

A Good Route Already Agreed Upon.

EVERYBODY ENTHUSIASTIC.

The enthusiasm for the midsummer festival continues to increase. The merchants and their floats, and several notable addditions to the procession were made yesterday. The notices with sealed descriptions of floats already enlisted are coming at headquarters. The merchants realize the importance of this notice and description for it is absolutely necessary in the assignment of positions. Those who covet the best positions will do well to put in their notices and sealed descriptions early. The committee must know the general character of the float and the space it will occupy by noon Saturday, and the earlier the notices come in the better.

The sub-committee to look out a route for the procession rode over the ground yesterday and selected a line of march which, if practicable, will give general satisfaction. One or two obstacles will have to be gotten out of the way, but the committee anticipates no trouble in accomplishing this. When the arrangements are completed it will make as good a route as could be desired. During the drive the committee saw enough to show that the limit of sixteen feet for the height of the floats would have to be strictly adhered to.

The arrival of the elephant at Piedmont park early yesterday morning created a strong undercurrent of excitement among the young folks, and tended to heighten, if possible, the general enthusiasm.

Several of the executive committee visited the park and inspected the elephant. They were surprised and gratified the handsome proportions of the beast, and began at once to make special arrangements for the animal's part in the parade They had a conference with Mr. Otto, the keeper, at whose suggestion everything will be done to make the elephant feel at home. But of the elephant more in another column. Suffice it to say that the executive committee will provide elaborately for her comfort and contentment while in the procession.

Some Unique Displays. Messrs. Hampton and company, the produce dealers, will have 2,000 live fowls in the pro-

"We will have a float drawn by four horses," said Mr. Hampton, "and on it we will have 2,000 fowls, chickens, guineas, ducks, geese and turkeys. The fowls will be in coops and will load an immense wagon. It will make one of the most attractive displays in the procession. The 2,000 fowls will average a pound and a half a piece, which, with the crates, will make 4,000 pounds, so you see it will be no light affair for even four horses to pull."

Such a cackling, crowing, quacking and gobbling as this will bring about has never been heard in Fulton county.

Mr. John M. Moore, the Peachtree shoe man, announces that he will have eight men at work making fine shoes, on his float. They will be skilled workmen, brought out from the factories. Several of them arrived yesterday. Mr. Joe Eddleman has engaged six of the finest horses in the city for this float, and says it will be one of the handsomest displays in the line.

Mr. R. Lee Miller, the live Peachtree street grocer, will have a dazzling display of confections and fancy groceries in the line. Mr. Miller makes a specialty of fine confections, and his float will be worth seeing.

It has leaked out that the Collins Brick Company will have a display which will require twenty mules to carry.

Mr. J. L. Stubb will have two magnificent floats and proposes to make a stir when his display comes out.

The executive committee is working hard all the time, General Chairman Fear and Mr. M. C. Kiser have almost given up other business for the time being. Chief Marshal John Miller has entered into the organization of the parade with heart and soul, and has already evolved a plan of making up the procession which will make confusion and discord almost impossible. Military precision adapted to the requirements of an industrial parade will be the rule. The plan in view will make the handling of heavy floats an easy matter.

As Mr. Kiser remarked yesterday: "Everything points to a grand success The community is enthusiastic. All we ask is good Much Depends on Your Answer.

Thousands of people over this land are interested on a great que sition, namely, the welfare of their sons. They are trying to solve the problem, and are asking themselves the question, "What shall I do with my boy?" Much depends on your answer. A mistake right here may prove fatal. In a word, the future of your child largely depends upon your answer. It is a great responsibility. But you must meet it. Something must be done. The question is, what are you going to do about it? First of all educate the boy. Send him to a good school where he will be developed mentally, morally, and physically. The Davis School of North Carolina has an attractive announcement in this paper. Read what it says. It may help you to decide the question, "Where shall I send my boy to school?" Much Depends on Your Answer.

GIFTS TO THE MENAGERIE. Two Contributions to the Gress Zoological

Collection.

A magnificent South American monkey, perfectly tame and as playful as a kitten.

A beautiful young fox, with eyes as bright as diamonds, a perfect little beauty.

These were two contributions received for the Gress zoo yesterday by The Constitution. The South American monkey was contributed through the interest of Mr. F. E. Grist, of Fort Gaines, Ga. Mr. Grist has a friend in Morgan City, I.a., by the name of H. M. Mayo. Mr. Grist has a fancy for fine chickens, and his friend, Mr. Mayo, wrote him that he would like to exchange his monkey for a coop of Mr. Grist's finest breed of chickens, the monkey to be presented to the zoo at Grant park. This was accepted. Mr. Grist sent the chickens to Mr. Mayo and Mr. Mayo sent the monkey to The Constitution, from whence it goes to Grant park.

Mr. J. D. Stokes, of Eastman, Ga., is the donor of the fox, which was received by The Constitution yesterday, and which will be appreciated as a valuable contribution to the menagerie.

The most generally useful medicine is Ayer's Pills. As a remedy for the various diseases of the stomach, liver, and bowels, these Pills have no equal. Their sugar-coating causes them not only to be easy and pleasant to take, but preserves their medi-cinal integrity in all climates and for any reasonable length of time. The best family medicine, Ayer's Pills are, also, unsurpassed for the use of travelers, soldiers, sallors, campers, and pioneers. In some of the most critical cases, when all other remedies

"In the summer of 1864 I was sent to the Annapolis hospital, suffering with chronic diarrhea. While there, I became so reduced in strength that I could not speak and was compelled to write everything I wanted to say. I was then having some 25 or 30 stools per day. The doctors ordered a medicine that I was satisfied would be of no benefit to me. I did not take it, but persuaded my nurse to get me some of Dr. Ayer's Pills. About two o'clock in the afternoon I took six of these pills, and by midnight began to feel better. In the morning the doctors came again, and after deciding that my symptoms were more favorable, gave that my symptoms were more favorable, gave me a different medicine, which I did not use, but took four more of the pills instead. The next day the doctors came to see me, and thought I was doing nicely, (and so did I). I then took one pill a day for a week. At the end of that time, I considered myself cured and that Ayer's Pills had saved my life. I was then weak, but had no return of the disease, and gained in strength as fast as could be expected."—F. INSEASONABLE CLOTHING AND a Balky Mule are much alike. Hard to move either. You may cluck, coax and cuss, but he stands like a Sphynx, won't budge. Use heroic measures-lash, club and fire, if he's a dignified, self-respecting mule, they'll each fail to make him stir. It is the same with U nseasonable Clothing. You can slash the prices cruelly and advertise loudly "at cost," but if they don't agree with the weather, buyers remain quite indolent. The goods that we've heralded recently are delightfully seasonable. Exactly right weights for August, September and a part of October. The reductions are enormous, just as stated, and that is why quick-pulsed peo-ple have promptly sought them out. If a suit or pair of pants is needed this opportunity will serve to save you money. Straw Hats and thin Underwear might out-last the summer, therefore, profits are peeled from prices. Think of that, and dogdays yet to come.

Two leading facts concerning this business that you need to be told of again and again: We are large manufacturers of clothing.
 Our prices are the lowest and marked in plain figures. Our position as makers gives us power to offer you advantages unequalled elsewhere in the city. Every garment here is free from the middleman's profit. The cloth goes direct from the loom to the factory, then comes straight to you. No wholesale prince piles his profit on the price of our clothing. We save it—you save it. Isn't that worth considering?

Plain figures on price tags of Clothing was a unique innovation, and our system of marking that way is pleasant for customers. You are sure of no sharp practices. Certain that no $12.50 suit is held up at $15.

You'll never fully realize the comfort and confidence that confidence that comes with a suit that has had its cost represented by good old-fashioned Roman numerals.

PRESENTMENTS AND DREAMS.

A Strange and Remarkable Dream About the War.

From War Reminiscences.

The mysteries of dreams and mental presentments have bassed all the scentific and psychological wisdom of the world. One of the most interesting chapters in all literature is on this subject in a book which I read when a boy—"Salad for Schitary." I have never been much of a believer in either dreams or presentments, though there are some facts in connection therewith, that have made deep impressions upon my mind. When, with the confederate army, I crossed, for the first time, the Potomac river, in the campaign into Maryland, I had a presentment that I was one of the "unreturning." The horrible thought—4 phantom—hausical me until the war had anded, and I was as an safe at home. I had a dream in Juty, 1861, about a battle. I committed the thought or the revelations, to verse at the time; and the line—in part—were published in W. W. Holden's paper, The North Carolina Standard, printed in Raleigh. The lines appeared in Angust or September of the year named. They have been re-written, and are herewith republished under a different title, "The Verse in its present form was once publicly recited by me in Atlanta, in 1888.

A remarkable dream occurred with a messin Atlanta, in 1888.

in Atlanta, in 1888.

A remarkable dream occurred with a messmate of mine while we were in Virginia. Some one had stolen a validable piece of property from him. He dreamed that if he would go to a pile of brush in the rear of a tent in an adjoining command, he would find the lost treasure. He arcse in the night, went to the place, found the pile of brush as seen in the dream, and there, concealed underneath, was the missing article.

the missing article.

But the most singular and startling dream that I have ever had any personal knowledge of came to a man in western North Carolina in the early spring of 1861. I was engaged, with others, at the time, in canvassing the country for volunteers, enlisting the first infantry company raised in that state west of the Blue Ridge. In the canvass a number of us visited the house of a well-known gentleman, 'Squire I Toric. W. company raised in that state west of the Blue Ridge. In the canvass a number of us visited the house of a weil-known gentleman, 'Squire Lewis. We were there for dinner. Mr. Lewis was a quiet, orderly, good citizen, a man of some prominence in the community; of spotless repute, but without a particle of the brag or demonstrative in his character. At the time he was considered a sympathizer with the south on the issues that were then uppermost in the minds of all people who read and talked.

talked.

But there had come a very marked change in the face, and purpose, and talk of the man. In conversation with him, he told one party that he had had a strange dream, which was troubling him. In one of the fields adjacent to his house; there was a very large, fine poplar tree, apparently without a particle of disease in it. The man told us that in his vision he saw that big tree suddenly wilt and die on a certain day of a certain unouth, which he named. Precisely one vear from that day he named. Precisely one year from that day he, too, was to wilt and die; and then, in three more years, the then young confederacy was

It is a fact well known in Watauga county, South Carolina, that on precisely the day named by Esquire Lewis the poplar tree died, suddenly smitten by a power which killed it instantly. My friend then became deeply and sorely impressed with the fact that in his dream there was the manifest prophecy of heaven. He became not on'y serious and morose and a deeply religious man; but he became also a pronounced and outspoken unionist, proclaiming dire prophecies against the confederacy. He lost all patience with the spirit that was carrying the young men by the score out of the country and sending them to war. But the man never joined the bodies of plundering thieves and robbers who infested that country during the reign of terror there, though many of Lewis's neighbors, who professed to hate secession, were with the robber bands. The good citizen seemed to be making praparations for his exit from this world, and while he disagreed with many of his old friends on political matters, they looked upon him as something of a crank or a man crazed by the way. The most noted citizen served. It is a fact well known in Watanga county, him as something of a crank or a man crazed by the war. The most noted citizen of an ad-joining county had lost his mind in conse-quence of the dissolution of the union and the war that had resulted, and he had put an end to his existence in a quiet suicide that had war that had resulted, and he had put an end to his existence in a quiet suicide that had sent a thrill of horror and sadness into many parts of western South Carclina. It was expected that Lewis would kill himself also. But no. His native strength of soul kept him above the self-imposed tragedy.

But the man became suddenly smitten with disease a few days before the time amounted.

But the man became suddenly smitten with disease a few days before the time appointed, he said, for his death. When the day came my friend pass away peacefully, yet warning those about him that the end of the confederacy would come in three years. It was almost three years to a day—three years after the man's death—that President Davis was captured, and the confederacy itself was a thing of the past; and that wonderful dream, foreshadowing events for four years of the future, had been entirely fulfilled.

Since then I have frequently passed the old e then I have frequently passed the old Since then I have frequently passed the old Lewis homestead. The dead tree, after stand-ing for four years, was blown down; but I never looked at the simple cabin on the hill-side near by but what I was filled with such feelings and impressions as I imagined one would experience in passing a house that was known to be haunted.

THE TEAR AND STONE.

A SOLDIER'S DREAM. From War Reminiscences.

In prophecy a vision came:
And stars in their splendor kept
Their tireless vigils o'er the camp,
While weary comrades slept
Beside him with their gleaming steel
All ready for the fray
When sentry's gups and roll of drums
Had ushered in the day.

A thousand bleaching tents around
Like inidnight spectres shone;
While desolation, held at bay,
Was marking them their own.
The march-worn steed had ceased his stamp
While on each flowing mane
Shone dews which on the morrow's night
Might glisten on the slain.

No katy-did, no whippowill, Sung out a nightly strain. And save the owlets' screech and hoot fitte slience held her reign. Not e'en the river told its tale,

But went in solemn pride, As though it knew that on the morn "Twould bear a crimson tide. The summer wind had ceased its psalm

The summer wind had ceased us psaid.
And waking melody,
And pillowed on the midnight hush,
'Twas dreaming of the sea.
The sentinel in silence watched,
'Reliefs' had sunk to rest,
And in this last sweet dream of home
How many hearts were blest!

One dreamed that on his native hills
Where once a boy at play,
He'd kept the gambols of his youth
Full many a summer day.
He saw a column rear its head
To dedicate to Fame
The brave who for their country died—
And there he saw his name!

There on the white memorial STONE
A nation wrought their praise,
And patriot pilgrims came as in
The olden Mecca days.
It told him of the victory won,
Of valorous deeds and brave,
And how they rest with honors blest
Who filled the soldiers' grave.

There came one slowly to the spot, One carrying many a scar,
And from the language of his crutch,
A hero of the war!
His talk was sad—his brother slept,
And thus you heard him say,
When turning with a shaking head:
"Oh, 'twas a bitter day."

A matron, in her stricken pride, A marron, in her stricken pride,
At even wandered there.
And, for the dead hope of her heart
Sent up a mother's prayer!
All red man there came and wept—
His tors half grief, half joy;
White from—ling a whotoger fell—
"Sleep on, my see—hoy!

A pensive maiden came and preA finger to her check;
A sigh told of the dream of love
Her lips could never speak!
She turned away—to bless his name—
A heart-born Trans she gave;
And, in the memory of their troth,
A blossom decked his grave!

What gave the sleeper in his bliss
The startled wakening?
His countrades heard her name—sweet word!
Above the bugle's screan—
And morning found him dying for His country and his dream!

. . . . Sleep, soldier, sleep thy hallowed sleep! More than a dream shall be. The vision of the TEAR AND STONE--A country weens for thee! And hones shall thy victory claim, Justice thy cause enshrine; While geniue round thy glorious deeds Her fairest wreath shall twife.

Manassas! On the classic page
Still righter grow thy fame!
Not Marathous nor inkermans
A nobler page shall claim?
Thy name shall live while Right can give
The free-born race a home;
Till Liberty in lone exile
Some outer world shall roam.

A REBEL PARROT.

tress. Washington Correspondence New York Sun. General Fornoy, of Alabama told a good story of the war not long ago in a cloak room of the house of representatives. He heard it from the lips of a confederate officer, who got it direct from Judah P. Benjamin, the confed-

Jefferson Davis and his cabinet were at some little town in western North Carolina on their way to Texas, after Lee's surrender, on their way to Texas, after Lee's surrender, when they heard of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. The news appalled them. A council of war was held. All felt that the indignation of the north over Lincoln's death would be so great that summary vengeance would be wreaked upon any members of the confederate cabinet who were captured. Benjamin struck out for himself. He tried to make his way to the sea coast, and take his chances of escaping to Europe. He had little money. At first he was assisted by members of his own religious faith. But in time the surplus ran out, and he had anything but a urplus ran out, and he had anything but a deasant experience. He understood that pleasant experience. He understood that there was a large reward offered for his arrest. The country was secured by federal cavalry, and several times he narrowly escaped capture. He finally reached the boundary of Florida and Georgia. It was unsafe for him to apply at plantations for shelter. He slept in thickets and wherever he thought it would be safe. One night, hungry and footsore, he went to sleep upon a bed of pine needles in a scrub of small palmettoes. Soon after daylight he awoke. A sharp falsetto voice shouted: "Hurrah for Jeff!"

It startled him. At first he thought that it came from some yankee trooper on his trail, came from some yankee trooper on his trail, and trying to lure him out. The mocking birds were singing in the pine trees above the palmettees, and finches were twittering in the palmetroes, and finches were twittering in the tops. Occasianally a cardinal groesbeak flew over him. All the time, however, he heard the words: "Hurrah for Jeff!" uttered in the shrill falsetto tone. At lergth he ventured to raise his head and cautiously peer over the scrubby palmetroes. Nobody was in sight. H raised himself to his full height, which was very short and looked around him.

"Hurrah for Jeff!" was repeated. He saw, a few yards away, a parrot sitting upon the limb of a burlued prine. He quickly concluded that the owner of the bird could be trusted. He approached the parrot, which gazed at him with apparent interest, and then began to whistle, "A way Down in Dixie." A moment afterwards the bird flew 100 yards or more and again shouted: "Hurrah for Jeff!" more and again shouted: "Hurrah for Jeff!"
Benjamin followed, and soon arrived at a plantation in the edge of a hummock, shaded with live oaks. Its owner lived in a large log house, with a cartway through the middle. The chimneys were built upon the outside of the dwelling, and there was a row of negro quarters near by. A tall cracker sat upon the stoop dandling a half-naked boy upon his knee. Benjamin asked him if he owned the parrot. He replied that he did and added: parrot. arrot. He replied that he did, and added: 'That bird's a rale old rebel, like the rest of Thereupon Benjamin made himself known, and was treated with the utmost hospitality. More than that, the cracker gave him a mule and saddle, and after that he had no difficulty in making his way to the coast.

Druggists who are selling Smith's Tonic Druggists who are selling Smith's Tonic Syrup, made by Dr. Bull, of Louisville, Ky., wonder that its sales increase so rapidly. At first, they began to buy a quarter or a half dozen, but found that amount was sometimes sold in a single day, and now they say they are obliged to buy in thalf gross and gross lots in order to keep a supply on hand. There is a very good reason why Smith's Tonic Syrup should sell so well. There is not much newspars a departising done but it advartises itself. snould self so well. There is not much newspaper advertising done, but it advertises itself. Every bottle used is an advertisement, for it does exactly what it is expected to do. Woman has been compelled to suffer, not only her own ills, but those arising from a want of knowledge on the part of these with whom she stands connected. The frequent and distressing irregularties peculiar to her sex have thus been aggravated to a degree which no language can express. THE CHEAPEST AND BEST SUBSTI-TUTE FOR JUTE BAGGING

Mr. Paul Atkinson, "Jute Bagging's Enemy," in the City. Probably no man in the south has accomplished more in the fight against the jute bagging trust than Paul M. Atkinson. Last year, when the Farmers' Alliance decided to use cotton bagging, Mr. Atkinson recognized the atter inability of the mills to supply the demand, and in hunting a substitute found what proved to be the best, cheapest and strongest, and which, when submitted to the leaders of the alliance, received their unquali-fied endorsement, President Livingston writing as foliows:

ATLANTA, Ga., October 3.—Paul M. Atkinson:
Dear Sir.—The substitute for jute bagging which you are selling, I regard as a good one. Some localities are finding more or less difficulty in getting a supply of cotton bagging. In such cases
I cheerfully recommend yours as an excellent substitute, and one wholly independent of the jute trust. Wishing you success, I am yours, etc.,
I. Lavingston,
President Georgia State Farmers' Alliance.
With the endorsement of the alliance behind

With the endorsement of the alliance behind him, coupled with the superiority and cheapness of his goods, Mr. Atkinson had no trouble in selling at the substitute that he could find, and in order to be in better shape to supply the demand for the coming season, he has had agents both in Europe and America collecting material, and will have supply sufficient to meet all reasonable demands.

mands.

Mr. Atkinson deserves much credit for the fight he is making against the trust, and whilst there may be, and probably is, a selfish motive behind it all, yet it is in a good cause, and should be commended.

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, August 5.—Movements in Atchison, Missouri Pacific and Sugar Refineries continued to be the only features of the stock market today, and the remainder of the list was, as usual, extremely dull and practically stagnant. During most of the day there was a firm tone, but final prices show very slight changes from those mal prices show very sight changes from those of last evening. The monotony was as oppressive as at any time, and even in Missouri Facific and Atchison movements were comparatively insignificant, the declaration of interest on the Atchison comparative and the statements are also as a second property of the statements and the second beautiful and the second beautiful as a second property of the second property and the second property a nificant, the declaration of interest on the Atchison incomes having, seemingly, no influence whatever, either upon stocks or bonds. Selling for the past two days has come almost exclusively from the bear sources, but buying is more difficult to trace, but, as usual of late, when the pressure of short sales was removed, prices rallied, while the market became dull and uninteresting. The street is now anxiously awaiting the time when proffers of silver bullion will be opened in Washington under the new law. The opened in Washington under the new law. The late movement of silver outward seems not to have been maintained, and a noted bullion house today 'ordered $200,000 in silver from London, today ordered $20,000 in silver from honor, which will arrive in time to be included in the first offerings. The little flurry in money last evening was another factor in a position to wait, which is now so prominent in the street, and the action of the new law is awaited with the expectation that all such movements will be pre-vented by its enforcement. The rise in silver seems to have reached its limit for the time being, and prices today went back to below 113. Early on figures were generally lower than ours of London figures were gen-last evening and the first prices here were gen-erally made upon the same plan, with a special loss of %c in Pacific Mail. Further declines of fractional amounts were scored under a renewal of the pressure of the forenoon, the decline being led by Missouri Pacific in the regular list and Sugar. The bears unite their forces against ouri Pacific, as weakness in that stock always causes outsiders to believe Gould is in favor of lower prices. There is no evidence, however, that he has been operating in the market. Bears are laying stress upon the corn crop situation and are using it to frighten holders of railroad stocks. The percentage of loss by the shortage in the corn crop will be extremely small. The spurt in the last hour was aided by the sudden bidding up of money to 20 per cent, but up to that time the market had displayed much more steadness than yesterday. The close, while quiet, was heavy to weak, at small fractions under opening prices, even Missouri Pacific failing to lose more than a fraction. Sales of listed stock aggregated 117,000 market had displayed much more Exchange quiet but firm at 4831/24.90.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, August 5—[Special.]—Receipts of new cotton were not so large at Galveston, and that market reports an advance of ½c in its quotations, due to the sharp demand for cotton to fill tations, due to the sharp demand for cotton to fill deliveries in New Orleans on August. Savannah has another new bale, though more are reported as baving arrived there today. Through private sources we are inclined to believe, however, that the recent showery weather has delayed the early picking on the Atlantic. During the recent dull markets the local operators had rather oversold the market, and the demand from this source was sufficient to cause an advance of 5 points, and the market closed steady with a general expectation of better advices from Liverpool in the morning. It seems likely that the early demand this season will be from New York and New Orleans rather than from New England and Manchester.

HUBBARD, PRICE & Co.

The Sun's Review.

NEW YORK, Angust 5.—Futures opened at last night's prices, closing steady at four to six points advance from yesterday's closing prices. We had rather more of a market today. Receipts at the ports did not show an expected increase. There was renewal of draught reports from the extreme southwest, and the bulls had it that private accounts from Manchester were very strong, justifying the belief that Liverpool may open dearer tomorrow. Hence moderate buying, which was sufficient to account for the advance in prices, because sellers are exceedingly timid. Dearer money had no effect. The bulge, however, came to and end at the last call, and in the closing hour business was very dull again. usiness was very dull again. Cotton on the spot was fairly active, in port for

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, August 5—Wheat—Rather large trading again, and after a weaker and lower opening prices recovered and passed the highest figure reached yesterday by 1c. The opening was ½%½ lower, and prices further receded ½4c, but after several fluctuations the market suddenly became stronger and steadily advanced about 2c above inside figures, then eased off some and closed side figures, then eased off some and closed about 1/2% higher than yesterday. It is difficult to give reasons for the various changes in the market while in its present condition. The early decline and weakness were attributed to a desir to realize by local parties, and some selling orders from outside points were received. Then buying orders became more numerous, and up went prices with shorts anxious to cover. Business for bull speculation is now the condition of wheat in the orthwest and the possible outcome of the crop there. News generally was unfavorable.

Corn was fairly active and stronger. The strength was due largely to the firm feeling in wheat, but a good many outside orders were on the market to buy corn, which also had some influence. No only corn, which also had some influence. No rains of consequence were reported in the corn belt, but the temperature was said to be lower and more favorable. The market opened & & cabove the closing prices of yesterday, were easy for a short time, selling off &c, then firmed up, advanction in all active the constant of the constant ing in all 11/4@11/4c, ruled very firm and closed 11/4 @1%c better than yesterday.
